U. S. Judge Rules Dry Amendment Illegal

CASE MAY BE APPEALED TO UPPER COURT

Decision in New Jersey Not Expected to Affect Law's Enforcement

CAPITAL UNPERTURBED Judge Holds Constitutional Conventions Needed to Make Law Valid

BULLETIN
Washington — (P) — An "immediate appeal" will be taken to the supreme court from the decision by Judge Clark in New Jersey yesterday declaring the eighteenth amendment invalid. The decision was reached at the justice department today after conferences between Attorney General Mitchell, Assistant Attorney General Youngquist, in charge of prohibition; Phil F. Forman, United States attorney at Newark; Howard T. Jones, assistant prohibition director, and other officials. The justice department announced that "at the proper time," the supreme court will be requested to set the case down for early argument.

Washington — (P) — Washington today evinced a lively interest in the ruling of Federal Judge William Clark of New Jersey, declaring the eighteenth amendment invalid. From the days there came predictions that the decision would be reversed, in which they were joined to a certain extent by opponents of the national law. Senator Sheppard, a co-author of the amendment, termed Judge Clark's position "untenable" and was certain it would be set aside. Representative Beck of Pennsylvania, a foe of prohibition, said he could "see no real reason why the supreme court should not now invalidate the eighteenth amendment," but added he thought it improbable that this would be done, "at this late date."

Attorney General Mitchell and other officials of the justice department declined to comment officially. Newark, N. J. — (P) — Prohibition enforcement continued to function in New Jersey today despite the ruling of Federal Judge William Clark that the method of adoption made the eighteenth amendment invalid. The first liquor raid after announcement of the decision was made under direction of George S. Hobart, prosecutor of Bergen co., who as a member of the legislature sponsored the Hobart act, the state enforcement measure. He led a squad of police in a raid on the Riverside Boat and Yacht club early today. Thirty men and women were arrested.

State Senator Emerson L. Richards, who has a bill in the judiciary committee for the repeal of the Hobart act, said he would press for its enactment. "It becomes obligatory on the state to repeal the Hobart act in view of Judge Clark's decision," he said. Judge Clark held that ratification of the eighteenth amendment by the state legislatures was not the method prescribed by article five for adoption of amendments which transfer powers from the states to the federal government. He held that the amendment to be valid should have been ratified in constitutional conventions in the several states. Prohibition enforcement authorities in New Jersey said they would proceed as if no such decision had been rendered. "My decision," commented Judge Clark, "will not affect the operation of the prohibition laws in any way."

$100,000 DAMAGE BY FIRE AT MONROE

Garage Housing Thirty Automobiles Destroyed With Other Concerns

Monroe, Wis. — (P) — Loss approximating $100,000 including 30 automobiles, was caused last night by a fire that destroyed the building housing the C. H. Buehler and Co., garage, an indoor golf course, a tire shop and a soft drink parlor. The lack of strong wind saved another garage across the street and nearby houses. Volunteer firemen fought the fire in a temperature of 13 above zero but were unable to check it. The blaze appeared to have started in the region of a stove in the garage.

FORD IS UNINJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Youngstown, Ohio — (P) — Henry Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer, escaped injury in an automobile collision which damaged the steering gear of the car in which he was riding through Youngstown last night. Mr. Ford and his chauffeur and secretary proceeded on their trip from Washington to Detroit in a new car furnished by a Ford agency here, after a delay of an hour and a half.

The collision occurred on the main street at the public square here, between Ford's car and an automobile driven by W. N. Bare of Youngstown, who asserted today that Ford's car "crashed" a red traffic light while Bare was crossing with the green light. In spite of the damaged steering apparatus, Mr. Ford's car was driven to a motor agency under its own power. There the motor magnate waited in the sales room while a new car was prepared for him and the party's baggage transferred.

12 AIRPLANES ON FIRST LAP ACROSS OCEAN

Italian Craft on Flight from Homeland to Rio de Janeiro

Orbetello, Italy — (P) — Twelve Italian seaplanes roared away from the calm surface of Lake Orbetello at 7:45 a. m. today (1:45 a. m. E. S. T.) and, striking into a heavy mist, headed for Cartagena, Spain, on the first lap of a projected transatlantic flight to Rio de Janeiro. Piloting the first of the planes was General Italo Balbo, Italian air minister and leader of the expedition, which in many ways represents the most ambitious transoceanic flight adventure ever attempted. Fifty-three other men comprised the officers and crew of the Fiat air armada.

From Cartagena the airmen plan to fly down the Mediterranean and west African coast to a point near Dakar, Senegal, whence the expedition will take off on a 1,900 mile flight across the Atlantic to Natal, Brazil. From Natal they will strike out for Rio de Janeiro. It is planned eventually to sell the planes to the Brazilian government and to return home by ship.

Departure of the expedition followed a brief ceremony, witnessed by about 250 persons, in which the airmen stood at attention and sang the "Hymn of the Aviators," new Italian air service anthem. Then, taking off their hats, they raised their arms in the fascist salute and at General Balbo's order, "to your posts," repaired to the seaplanes.

Impressive Take-Off
General Balbo arose first in a black-winged plane emblematic of Fascism, two similar machines following. Then came three other groups of three planes each, the first with white wings, the second with red wings, and the third with green wings, representing the Italian national colors. In the rear were two red planes which may be substituted for any of the original twelve planes which may fall en route.

The planes rose into the air at 20 seconds intervals. All faced northward first and then turned westward toward the open sea on the more than 700-mile trip to Cartagena. There was not a breath of air stirring although there was a heavy mist, nearly a drizzle. Weather reports after two days' postponement of the start, were favorable. The expedition expected to reach Cartagena before the early nightfall of this season.

As General Balbo climbed into his seaplane he stood and shouted to his comrades: "And now a cheer for our duty." The men responded with the fascist cry: "Eya, eya, alala," the motors drowning out the last of the shout.

Prior to departure General Balbo discovered that chicken sandwiches had been included in the lunches fixed for the aviators. He ordered them removed, stating: "Chicken isn't fly. They would mean bad luck to us."

SHEPARD CHANGES FIRST STATEMENT

Says Purported Story to Federal Agents Contained Inaccuracies

Kansas City, Kas. — (P) — Major Charles A. Shepard testified on cross-examination today at his trial for the alleged poison murder of his wife that Mrs. Shepard had ceased to love him and that his purported statement to the contrary made to federal agents at Denver last spring was an "inaccuracy." Shepard testified that he realized at the time there were inaccuracies in the statement taken at Denver which he was arrested, but reiterated he considered the matter "none of the officers' business."

"You say your wife didn't love you?" District Attorney Sardinus M. Brewster asked soon after Shepard resumed the witness stand this morning. "She told me so," Shepard replied. Brewster then called attention to the statement made in Denver, in which Shepard was asked whether his wife loved him and he was quoted as replying, "absolutely."

"This," Major Shepard responded, "was another of several inaccuracies." The army medical officer left the stand after about an hour of questioning. Shepard was asked to explain why he had not used a stomach pump on Mrs. Shepard when she was stricken with the fatal illness. "Mrs. Shepard was a confirmed alcoholic for years," Shepard said. "You knew if mercury was left alone in the stomach 20 minutes nothing could be done to save her?" Brewster continued.

"I have told you," Shepard replied, "she had no symptoms of mercurial poisoning." Government witnesses have testified Shepard died of mercurial poisoning.

UNEMPLOYMENT ISSUE TO BE SOLVED—YOUNG

New York — (P) — Owen D. Young today expressed "a confident word of hope" that he shall yet master this dreaded disease of unemployment with all its social and economic ills. Addressing a luncheon meeting of the executive committee of New York's emergency employment committee, of which he is a member, he said the committee was not dealing with charity, but with the equalization of the impact of a disaster. "It is like a flood, an earthquake, or other physical disaster, impossible yet for us to foresee or to prevent, but yet possible with fine cooperative spirit to alleviate its direful results," he said.

NO ACTION ON WORLD COURT THIS SESSION

Senate Committee Votes for Delay in Consideration Until December

Washington — (P) — The senate foreign relations committee today voted to defer consideration of the world court until next December. The vote was 10 to 9.

Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, made the motion to postpone consideration. Republicans, including friend and foe of the court, joined him almost solidly. Democrats voted unitedly against the postponement.

Chairman Borah of the committee, an opponent of the court, and Senator Gillett of Massachusetts, an advocate, were the only Republicans to vote against defeat.

By this move, the Republicans forestalled any chance of the court issue becoming involved in this short session. They feared its discussion might lead to an extra session. It was agreed there was no opportunity to vote on the court at this session which ends March 4. The committee decided to hear Elhu Root, former secretary of state, who helped to draft the revised statutes of the world court which were modified in an effort to bring about an agreement among the other powers and the United States on the statute's ratification.

How Vote Stands
The vote in the committee follows: For postponement—Republicans: Johnson, California; Moses, New Hampshire; Capper, Kansas; Reed, Pennsylvania; Fess, Ohio; Goff, West Virginia; La Follette, Wisconsin; Vandenberg, Michigan; and Robinson, Indiana. Farmer-Labor: Shipstead, Minnesota.

Against—Republicans: Borah, Idaho; and Gillett, Massachusetts. Democrats: Swanson, Virginia; Pittman, Nevada; Robinson, Arkansas; Harrison, Mississippi; George, Georgia; Black, Alabama; and Wagner, New York.

The attitude of the friends of the court who voted for postponement was expressed in a statement by Senator Vandenberg. "I voted to save the world court from a needless black eye through inevitable failure at this short session," he wrote, "and I voted to save this session from an inevitable legislative jam which would impede emergency relief and annual appropriations and thus force an extra session of the new congress."

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, a friend of the court, was unable to vote because of his enforced absence from the city. However, Chairman Borah announced the 10 to 9 decision was final.

SON TESTIFIES AGAINST JONELIS DURING TRIAL

Shelbygan — (P) — The 16-year-old son of Anton Jonelis, Sr., 49, on trial in circuit court here on charges of murdering his wife, Veronica, 23, took the witness stand today to accuse his father of repeatedly threatening the family while intoxicated. "He often threatened to kill mother, but we never thought he meant it because he was drunk," the youth said. "When quarreling with mother he always told her she was paying attention to other men. We all told him we would love him if he would stop drinking."

Jonelis sat with his head cupped in his hands during the boy's testimony. He never looked at his son, who gave his answers calmly. His gaze directed toward the defendant.

SEES COMPROMISE ON MUSCLE SHOALS BILLS

Washington — (P) — Prediction that house and senate conferees will compromise tomorrow on Muscle Shoals legislation was made today by Chairman McNary of the senate conference committee, after another day of negotiation between representatives of the two houses.

The message said General Mauro de Leon, former minister of war, was killed in the fighting yesterday and that tranquillity prevailed there today. General Manuel Orellana, a well known military leader, has been designated as provisional president of the republic. Only yesterday the American government formally recognized Senator Palma as chief executive of Guatemala.

The recognition was in the form of a message from President Hoover to Palma wishing him success in his new office.

FIRING ON STREETS

Mexico City — (P) — Private radio dispatches received during the night in Mexico City from Guatemala City said a revolt broke out there at 10 o'clock p. m. yesterday, with considerable heavy firing in the streets an hour later.

The Mexican Aviation company, in absence of complete knowledge of the situation, instructed its pilot leaving San Salvador today to proceed directly to Mexico City, omitting his regular stop at Guatemala City.

The Guatemalan ambassador here said he had no report of a revolt, but members of the embassy pointed out that the same was there had been a saving opinion on the government of General Lázaro Chacón, was was forced to retire from the presidency last Friday when he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage.

DISMISSES CHARGE AGAINST LINDSEY

Judge Quashes Complaint Against Jurist but Rebukes Him

New York — (P) — A charge of disorderly conduct against former Judge Ben Lindsey was dismissed today by Magistrate Dreyer. The court dismissed the complaint made out by a police officer charging the Denver jurist with interfering with a religious ceremony when he interrupted Bishop William T. Manning's wedding in the cathedral of St. John the Divine a week ago last Sunday.

Then Magistrate Dreyer ordered a new complaint drawn to be signed by a representative of the church and when nobody came forward to sign it, he threw the case out of court. He rebuked Lindsey, however, in dropping the charge. "You are a man of intelligence, you are a lawyer, you are a judge, you knew you were in church and you knew the law," Magistrate Dreyer told the proponent of companionate marriage.

"If you felt you were maligned you had your remedy. I always say if a man hurts my feelings I have the courts to go to. A church has a right to hold a divine service without interruption. The public should be given to know that dismissal of this complaint does not make it all right to interrupt church services."

We all know we're going shopping — we've made up our mind to do that — but what to buy? What to buy? Many folks have solved the problem by referring to the "Christmas Shopper's Notebook," now appearing daily on the Classified Page until Xmas.

RECOVER $180 STOLEN FROM SHIOCTON BANK

Northport Young Man Arrested at Clintonville After Brief Search

ESCAPES THREE TIMES New London Police Find Him on Road and Give Him Ride

After evading a posse of 40 men thrown about the swamp between New London and Shiocton, Curtis Herfeth, 23, Northport, who held up the State bank at Shiocton at noon yesterday and took $180 in cash, was captured at Clintonville late last night.

Herfeth's escape from the swamp has apprehension and release by New London police three times after the robbery, and his subsequent capture on the trail which it seemed that he was near freedom, reads like a dime novel.

Sinus Confession
The youth, who has served a confession given to Sheriff John Lappen and District Attorney Stanley A. Steidl, told the sheriff he held up the bank because he needed money to pay a board bill and other debts in Northport, New London and Shiocton. He had worked in all three places during the last year.

Capture of the youth resulted from the violence of the posse thrown about the swamp by Sheriff Lappen and from quick thinking by Curtis Steidl, county motorcycle officer, in charge of the posse. It was officer Steidl who called the services of most of Shiocton's male population to guard the swamp and it was Officer Steidl who finally succeeded in getting a telephone call through to Chief Monty at Clintonville with instructions to take Herfeth from the train and hold him for questioning.

A series of "bad breaks" for Herfeth and "lucky breaks" for the officials led to the arrest. The youth's plan to rob the bank worked well until a customer, Isaac Young, entered the bank while he was looting the cash drawer. Young ignored the youth's command to "Slick 'em up" and ran from the bank. To get behind the partition which separates the workmen in the bank from the customer's room it was necessary for Herfeth to wait a running eight feet high. When Young fled from the bank Herfeth feared he would spread an alarm so he hastily stuffed as much currency as he could find into his pockets and clambered over the high railing again and jumped into a car parked in the street and started south on Highway 76.

Then came Herfeth's second "bad break." His car skidded on a curve a short distance out of the village and tipped over in the ditch. Without stopping to recover his sawed-off shot gun or revolver, the youth started across the fields to the swamp. He was acquainted with the territory and thought he would head for New London, about seven miles away.

Witnesses saw him enter the swamp and a few minutes later Officer Steidl came by and when he learned what had happened he went to Shiocton, organized a posse, and sent the men to surround the swamp. By checking the license number of the car authorities learned it was owned by John A. Adams of Green Bay and had been stolen about two weeks ago in that city.

In the afternoon Herfeth admitted stealing the car from Green Bay. Police Release Him

Herfeth continued through the swamp without meeting any one until he again cut through to Highway 54 where he noticed a car approaching. He took the roll of bills from his pocket and dropped them in the snow beside the fence. Then he clambered over the bank to the road where the car stopped and Police Chief Andrew L. Eck of New London alighted and asked him the name. Herfeth said he gave him a fictitious name, told the chief he was staying at New London and that he was "running" his trap line. The chief searched him, told him about the robbery at Shiocton, and then permitted him to leave. The youth met a truck going to New London and secured a ride into that city.

Later he returned and picked up the money and put it back into his pocket, again went to the road and started walking to New London. He had only gone a short distance when Police Chief Lueck and his men again caught up with him and stopped. The chief asked him if he wanted a ride to New London and Herfeth accepted the lift.

Gets Away Again
"I felt pretty nervous riding in the car with the officers while I had the money in my pocket," Herfeth said Wednesday morning. "So when we got close to New London I told the chief I had a couple more traps to set."

Olaya And Cabinet Honor Memory Of Great Bolivar

Santa Marta, Colombia — (P) — Across the thousand miles separating this lovely little seaport village from Bogota President Olaya and members of his cabinet flew today to participate in the ceremonies honoring the memory of Bolivar, the Liberator, whose heart has been buried here for a hundred years. As he stepped from his plane into the spotless street basking under a tropical sun and marched between rows of newly-painted white houses a great chorus of vivas mingled with the blast of ships' sirens. The president was to deliver the principal address at the ceremonies this afternoon. "War is my element; its perils my glory. I am the man of difficulties," Bolivar said that at the height of his prowess, when, against trained soldiers, tropical heat and mountain barriers, he had, with barefoot, ill-armed volunteers, wrested half a continent from the Spanish crown. But when the time came for him to die, he said: "I have worked with disinterested, abandoned my fortune and even my ease. I have been a victim of my prosecutors who have led me to the gates of my sepulchre. I forgive them. My last wishes are for the happiness of my country. If my death contributes toward making divisions cease and toward consolidations, I will descend, tranquil, to the grave."

He died Dec. 17, 1830, of tuberculosis, in the house of a Spaniard, after his countrymen denied him shelter in his tragic hours.

Spaniards Cheer King Alfonso As He Triumphs Over Rebels

BUT PREMIER BREAKS DOWN UNDER STRAIN

Revolutionary "President" and Followers Face Trial for Conspiracy

Madrid.—(P)—Half a million men on strike throughout Spain and there was intermittent fighting in several cities today but the government held to the belief that the revolution against the crown had been definitely crushed.

Yesterday, it was pointed out, nearly a million men obeyed a general strike order, but half of these were reported to have returned to their jobs.

Bilbao reported 25,000 men out and transportation facilities tied up. San Sebastian was quiet and there were no disorders here but fighting was reported at Ayamonte, Isla Cristina and Huelva.

Troops were in control at all points and police were operating the trolleys in several cities.

Madrid.—(P)—For the first time since revolution put Spain under martial law, King Alfonso came out of his palace today and drove in an open carriage to the Church of San Francisco for ceremonies commemorating the achievements of the South American patriot, Simon Bolivar.

At his own order he was accompanied by only a skeleton guard, and he smiled broadly and waved his arm at the great crowds which cheered his passage through the streets. It was characteristic of his flair for ignoring danger to his person.

But General Damaso Berenguer, the premier, worn by the days and nights of care, had collapsed under the strain. The doctors said he had a severe case of tonsillitis and that his illness was aggravated by sleeplessness and incessant smoking since last Friday, but that he would recover.

Nicolas Alcala Zamora, whom the revolutionists proclaimed "president of the republic," made a statement in prison accepting responsibility for his part in the revolt and expressed a willingness to take the consequences whatever they may be. Iguil Maura, another outstanding insurrectionist leader, made a similar statement.

The substance of their "confessions" was that republican and Socialist and labor leaders throughout Spain had been planning for months to overthrow the king and establish a republic. Their movement was thoroughly organized, they said, and the first outbreak was to have taken place by Monday morning.

Planned Bloodless Coup
It was to have been accomplished without bloodshed and there was to have been a general strike simultaneously in every Spanish city. The revolutionists hoped to paralyze the nation's business and industrial life and they expected complete cooperation from the army.

After three or four days of the strike the plotters anticipated that the king would be ready to abdicate and Premier Berenguer to resign. Then the republic, with Zamora at its head was to come into being. Zamora already had his cabinet list made out. It included a number of Socialist and Republican leaders, all of whom also are in jail.

But what happened was quite different. The impetuous commander of the garrison at Jaca took things into his own hands and the rebellion there last Friday let the government know that the long-expected revolution was at hand. Then the army disappointed the revolutionists, remained loyal to the crown and the plot was frustrated.

Beyond that, however, the real reason for the failure of the plot appeared in these statements of the leaders to have been internal disagreement in the revolutionary organization itself.

The labor heads on the one hand wanted an absolute Communist revolution and a Communist government when it was over. When cooler heads refused to accede to any such demand the movement lost the support of an important section of the labor forces, whose members held that a new republic would be just another government by the upper classes.

Jails Are Filled
As the smoke began to clear away today it appeared that one tangible result of the excitement of the past week was the crowding of a lot of jails to capacity. In all parts of the north it was estimated that 4,000 civil prisoners were in cells as a result of their part in the revolution.

Most of them probably will be released soon, but Zamora and the other leaders are to go before a military court martial. It was expected that their trial would be delayed several weeks or perhaps several months, and the sentence was expected to be imprisonment in all cases.

Meanwhile the political prospects seemed to be that Berenguer's government would continue in office until things calmed down and that after a few months it would resign to make way for a new cabinet composed of strong monarchists.

Should there be any further uprisings in the near future it was believed a dictatorship would be established immediately with a general who is a close personal friend of the king as dictator.

The whole situation seems to be dominated by the king himself who continues to maintain close touch with every development, conferring with his ministers and telephoning all over the country. Nobody could say how long martial law would con-

Seek Slayer Of Teacher In Missouri

Marysville, Mo.—(P)—Aroused by the mysterious murder of 19-year-old Velma Colter in the country school house where she was a teacher, a posse of citizens using blood hounds sought her unknown assailant today.

The body of the girl, beaten about the head, was discovered at dusk by T. H. Thompson at whose home she resided. He said he went to the school house when the girl failed to arrive home at the accustomed time. The young teacher's bloodstained clothing were heaped beside her body. Dr. C. D. Humbert, coroner, said she had been attacked. The coroner said he had discovered fingerprints which he was investigating.

Sheriff Harve England was informed by school children that Miss Colter had remained alone in the building to read examination papers after dismissal of school at 4 o'clock. He said that Will New, a farmer living adjacent to the school reported

Children To See Movie, Get Gifts

Flour and lard, potatoes and bread may keep young stomachs from shrinking, but they don't fire the child brain with rosy dreams of Santa Claus and his reindeer. Therefore, though the city poor department is extending itself to provide the necessities of life to Appleton's indigents, it will go a step farther this year and give a Christmas party for the needy children of the city.

A movie and vaudeville especially designed for children will be given at Warner Brothers Appleton theatre Christmas morning for all poor children of the city and the inmates of the City Home. Mayor John Goodland Jr. will give a short address and gifts will be distributed to the youngsters. W. L. Lyons, poor commissioner is in charge of arrangements.

Rome.—(P)—Mussolini announced at a thrift congress here that the average Italian man, woman and child has $23 in the savings banks and he warned bankers there must be no losses of poor people's money.

AMENDMENT IS HELD ILLEGAL BY U. S. JUDGE

Decides Prohibition Not Valid Without Constitutional Conventions

way. The Hobart act, the New Jersey enforcement law, is also still in force.

Trenton Judge Disagrees
Common Pleas Judge William B. Harley at Trenton said that in view of the fact that every possible phase of the question having been threshed out, he could not conceive of Judge Clark's decision being sound.

"I had a part in the drawing of the briefs in the famous Feigenspan case in 1920," he said. "In that case Thomas F. McCran and Elihu Root represented Christ Feigenspan (brewer), Charles Evans Hughes and George S. Hobart, with whom I was associated at the time, represented the Anti-Saloon league. The point raised by Judge Clark in his decision came up for discussion while we were preparing our briefs and we passed it up as being of little consequence or value to the opposite side as one of their arguments in support of their contention that the eighteenth amendment was unconstitutional."

Philip Forman, the United States attorney, who prosecuted the case of William Sprague, clerk of Wantage township, and a farmer, on a charge of transporting beer, in which the indictment was quashed by Judge Clark's decision, was studying the opinion today with a view of taking an appeal.

He said the appeal might be taken either to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals or direct to the supreme court.

Enforcement to Continue
"Meanwhile," he said, "as I understand it, no other judge in the United States, nor the judges of this district are bound by the opinion and therefore, enforcement of the Volstead act in New Jersey will continue until the remaining three judges of this bench all decide in agreement with Judge Clark, or until a decision of the higher courts is reached in his opinion."

Governor Larson said:
"As far as I am concerned the eighteenth amendment is still the law of the land. The prohibition question just now is a wilderness and there will some day be a Moses to lead us out of it. I would not advise my friends to transport liquor."

Judge Clark's decision was the outcome of what amounted to a test case of the contention of a committee of the New York County Lawyers' association that the adoption of the eighteenth amendment was invalid under the tenth amendment to the constitution which modified Article VI.

Soldiers, Daniel F. Cohalan and Julius Henry Cohen, members of the committee, presented the argument against validity of the amendment before Judge Clark. Frederick M. P. Pease of Newark, a former assistant United States attorney, was counsel of record for the defense.

Youngest Federal Judge
Judge Clark at 38 is the youngest member of the federal bench. He was appointed in May, 1925, by President Coolidge, resigning from the bench of the New Jersey Court of Appeals to accept the federal post. His appointment was backed by the late Wayne F. Wheeler, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league.

He was born in Newark and is a graduate of Harvard. He served as a captain in the World war and was cited for gallantry in action.

In his five years as a federal judge three of his decisions have been reversed out of 83 cases carried to higher courts.

Judge Clark's decision, 15,000 words, devoted little attention to points raised by counsel. Authorities cited were, in the main, picked from the volumes which line the walls of the library in his huge colonial house in Princeton. For it was there, far into many nights, that this tall, angular man who graduated from Harvard in three years and although an her to millions took his place in the ranks during the World war, pondered his problem.

Declaring the points 1. was deciding had never been submitted to the supreme court, Judge Clark noted that the fifth article states amendments to the constitution may be ratified "by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof."

"Political science," he wrote, "can give only an answer to the question presented by the alternative methods of ratification prescribed by Article five. If the amendment to be considered is one designed to transfer to the United States powers heretofore reserved to the states, or if there are any such, to the people, that answer must be in favor of the convention method."

He held his decision should not affect other amendments ratified by state legislatures, since the only one whose nature in any respect resembled the eighteenth, was the thirteenth, the slavery amendment. The distinction, he said, was that the thirteenth amendment did not "as does the 18th, contain a grant of power to regulate and prohibit certain acts."

Little Excitement
Washington (AP)—Neither cheers nor groans echoed in Washington at news that a federal judge had ruled the eighteenth amendment invalid. Such opinion as was expressed here today held the decision would not cut much ice.

The drvs predicted the supreme court, if and when the ruling comes up for review, will reverse it. They cited numerous precedents. The justice department held it could not, until after supreme court action, affect the status of prohibition. Anti-prohibitionists in Washington had not summed up their attitude, but,

Hoover's Visited by Grandchildren

Come to make their home in the White House for several months, the three children of Herbert Hoover, son of the President, are pictured above as they arrived in Washington from California. It was their grandmother herself—the First Lady of the Land—who met them at the train, and she is shown holding the hands of Herbert Hoover, 33, now nearly 4 years old, and Peggy Anne, 5. Baby Joan is seen at the right, in the arms of a nurse. At the left is Mrs. Herbert Hoover, 24, who is to join her husband at Ashville, N. C., where he is convalescing from a slight lung lesion.

most heads of national wet groups in other cities were conservative in comment.

The drvs gave their position in expressing belief that the grounds upon which Judge William Clark of New Jersey, yesterday decided against the prohibition amendment, had been held unsound by the supreme court years ago.

Edward B. Dunford, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league, said the contention in the case "is not new," and "was held unsound when first made ten years ago."

The highest bench has held repeatedly that various attacks on constitutional prohibition had no merit. It has refused to entertain several other attempts to break down the amendment. Those who know well the workings of the court hold the view that in matters of this sort it is inclined to a liberal construction of the constitution's provisions. The justices thus would be interpreting the amendment as an expression of the people's will which should prevail over the narrower technicalities.

The only direct effect anticipated from Judge Clark's ruling was a possibility that in his jurisdiction authorities might refuse to act against violators. This was entertained by one government official here while others were emphatic in asserting it could have no control over the actions of other district judges even in New Jersey and that it would not prevent arrests in that state under the national prohibition act.

A suggestion was advanced by one dry leader, Oliver W. Stewart, president of the Flying Squadron foundation, that if the eighteenth amendment were held invalid, the thirteenth—it abolished slavery—must also fall. It too, was ratified by the legislatures and not by conventions.

Situation in Brief
The crux of the situation is contained in the following:
Article V, U. S. constitution:

The congress, whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this constitution, or, on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for the purpose of proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths thereof of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the congress. . . .

Amendment X.
The powers not delegated to the United States by the constitution nor prohibited by it to the states are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people.

Federal Judge William Clark at Newark, N. J., in holding the eighteenth amendment invalid said:
"If the amendment to be considered is one designed to transfer to the United States powers heretofore reserved to the states, or if there by any such, to the people, the answer must be in favor of the convention method."

As regards transfer of power Judge Clark that the only amendment resembling the eighteenth was the thirteenth, the slavery amendment, but the thirteenth did not grant power to regulate and prohibit certain acts.

Defendant "Drinking Man"
Wantage, N. J. (AP)—The party of the second part in U. S. vs Sprague, who, if certain hopes are realized, will have fame comparable to that of Dred Scott, has been having his troubles.

William Sprague, farmer and town clerk, defendant in the case in which Federal Judge Clark has held the eighteenth amendment invalid said:
"The case has given me a lot of bother; so many people have been annoying me, asking me about the case and for my picture and other things."

"Maybe I won't have to go to jail now," was his chief comment.

By way of celebration, he said he, his wife and their 12-year-old daughter might indulge in a little "cider," which he defined as the product formed when sweet cider is exposed to the elements for a certain length of time.

"Are you a drinking man?" he was asked.
"Absolutely," was the reply.
Sprague is 42 years old and has been clerk of Wantage township for the past six years.

POST OFFICE IN MIDST OF RUSH FOR CHRISTMAS

More Workmen Added to Staff; Parcel Post Division Moved to Basement

The Christmas rush of mailing was felt more keenly at the Appleton postoffice Wednesday morning as officials made preparations to move the parcel post department to the basement, as has been done in former years. This move is necessary because there is no available space on the working floor of the office where the enormous rush of incoming packages can be conveniently handled.

Postal officials also were planning to open another stamp window to accommodate patrons. The two service windows which are now doing duty are unable to handle all the business.

Opening of the new stamp window and transferring of the parcel post delivery activities to the basement necessitated the engagement of several more workers Wednesday. Two extra delivery trucks have been pressed into service and more will be added as needed. All the available substitute clerks and carriers are at work and several additional men have been given employment.

The peak of the Christmas rush is expected the last part of this week and early next week.

The show will open at 9 o'clock. After the articles of food are stocked up, a show especially chosen for youngsters, will be presented. The food stuff will be turned over to charitable organizations for distribution to the poor.

House Committee Votes To Reduce Drought Fund To 30 Million

SEE STRUGGLE ON FLOOR FOR LARGER SUM

Secretary Hyde Denies Approving $60,000,000 Senate Measure

Washington—(P)—The House agriculture committee today voted to reduce from $60,000,000 to $30,000,000 the senate drought relief loan bill. Democrats on the committee will carry the fight for $60,000,000 and food loans to the floor. The committee's action followed a stormy hearing at which Secretary Hyde denied ever approving the $60,000,000 senate drought relief loan bill.

An unsuccessful effort was made by Democratic Leader Garner to get consideration of the house bill on the floor when that body convened. Representative Sproul, Republican, Illinois, objected.

Secretary Hyde declared $25,000,000 would be sufficient to take care of needs of drought stricken farmers.

The secretary said the agriculture department views the senate's proposal to provide funds for loans for food as "a very dangerous proposition."

Nationally, Hyde said drought damage was confined to corn, hay and pastures. There was no harm from a national standpoint on the cotton crop but various local areas were affected.

NEEDN'T USE ALL
Representative Jones, Democrat, Texas, asked whether the department would use all of the $60,000,000 as proposed in the senate resolution. If it were enacted, the Texas point out that the resolution merely was an authorization and that the department would not be required to expend it for loans unless the demands were sufficient to require it.

Secretary Hyde replied "there is no need to provide more money than necessary; it is unnecessary to throw the budget out of balance in this manner."

In the past few years, he added, it was getting to be an annual recurrence for farmers to appeal to the federal government for loans. The department has kept the loans to seed, feed and fertilizer purposes.

"I personally regard loans by the federal government for food on such thin security a dangerous step toward the debt system in this country," Hyde said. "It is our view this principle of federal loans should not be expanded."

Cases outside the need of loans for crop necessities, he told Representative Fulmer, Democrat, South Carolina, "are proper cases for the Red Cross."

The following dialogues were presented: "On an On Father," "At the Photographer's," "Doll Versus Dogs," "The Cook and the Cookies," "Getting Ready for the Circus," "Sam Meets Simon," "Scraping Acquaintance," "Sam's Proposal," "When Billie Wore Pink Stockings," and "The Last Word." Those taking part were Merlyn Diederich, Leon and Clement Fischer, August, John, and Mabel Kluge, Earl, Lucile, and Virginia Mueller, Edwin Nelson, Jerome and Mido Reuther, Carl and Ruth Schwitzer, Elmyra Seitz, and Lucille Uhlenbruch.

An old Fairview was sung by all the pupils, "America the Beautiful" and "Lavender Blue" by Mabel Kluge, Virginia Mueller, and Elmyra Seitz, "My Bonnie" by Mabel Kluge, and "I Wish I Was Single Again" by August Kluge.

PATRIOTIC THIEVES STEAL FLAG POLE AT SCOUT COUNCIL CAMP

M. G. Clark, valley scout executive, is convinced that at least one gang of thieves in the world is patriotic.

Upon visiting Camp Chicagami, valley council summer headquarters on Lake Winnebago, Mr. Clark discovered that the 50-foot steel flag-pole was gone. Closer investigation revealed that the thieves had removed the bolts which held the large pole to its concrete base and hauled it away. The gang also entered the cook's shanty and walked off with a 250 to 300 pound ice box, a white topped table, and other equipment.

The windows on the shanty were locked and the heavy lock on the door was intact, except for a few scratches which led Mr. Clark to believe that the lock was picked.

Mr. Clark said he also found many of the windows in the main camp building broken and the window frames and woodwork on the interior of the building riddled with bullets.

PAPER INSTITUTE ADDS CHEMIST TO RESEARCH STAFF

Dr. Ben W. Rowland Starts Work on Problems Connected With Industry

Announcement of the appointment of Dr. Ben W. Rowland as research associate and associate professor of colloidal chemistry at the Institute of Paper Chemistry was made today by Henry M. Wriston, president of Lawrence college and director of the Institute. Dr. Rowland comes to the institute from the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company.

The appointment is the result of the establishment of a research fellowship by the Stein-Hall organization. Dr. Rowland, who has already begun his work, will conduct special research in problems related to the use of starch in paper manufacture, and will conduct and direct research in colloidal chemistry, a new field of activity at the institute.

Dr. Rowland was graduated from the University of Colorado in 1917 with a bachelor of arts degree and returned the following year as instructor of chemistry. In 1923 he was appointed junior chemist in the bureau of mines in which capacity he conducted research on war gas.

From 1919-1921 Dr. Rowland was instructor in chemistry at the University of North Dakota following which he was appointed student instructor in physical chemistry at the University of Wisconsin. In 1925 he was awarded a doctor of philosophy degree in physical chemistry at the University of Wisconsin and the following year was engaged as research chemist in colloidal and physical chemistry by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company.

Two years later he was made director of the research section in colloidal chemistry with that concern.

Studied in Sweden
During his graduate training Dr. Rowland had the opportunity of studying with Svedberg of Upsalla, Sweden, one of the most noted colloidal chemists in the field. That his research has been unusually effective is evidenced by the fact that the new Institute appointee has several patents in the field of rubber.

Professional recognition has come to him through membership in the American Chemical Society, Sigma Xi, and several other professional and honorary groups of high standing.

The Stein-Hall organization, through whose gift the appointment was made, has made it possible for Dr. Rowland to study starches, tannins, dextrins, and other carbohydrates and fibres.

CAR SKIDS, INJURES 2 HIGHWAY WORKERS

Glendon Dey, and Nick Miller in St. Elizabeth Hospital

Glendon Dey, son of C. Leonard Dey, Black Creek, and Nick Miller, MacKsville are in St. Elizabeth hospital with injuries received about 5:30 Tuesday afternoon when a car owned by P. J. Kleiber and driven by Lawrence Weber, Black Creek struck them on Highway 54 near Black Creek.

Dey suffered severe lacerations and bruises about the head, face, body and legs, while Miller received a broken right leg and bruises about the head and body.

The Black Creek youth and Miller were about to leave for home when the accident occurred. Both were working on Highway 54 with a crew of men.

Dey had started to walk home, carrying a cross-cut saw on his shoulder when the machine driven by Weber skidded on the slippery highway and struck him. The youth dropped his saw and jumped for the ditch, but the rear end of the skidding machine caught him and knocked him into the road.

The car continued to skid for about 40 feet more and struck Miller who was about to climb into his own car. He also was knocked into the road. They were taken to a Black Creek physician's office and later were moved to the hospital in this city.

THREE VILLAGES ONCE COMPRISED AREA IN APPLETON

History of City Is Continued by Dr. W. F. Raney in Rotary Talk

Starting from the time when the area now known as Appleton was three separate villages, Grand Chute, Appleton, and Lawesburg, Dr. W. F. Raney of the history department of Lawrence college, continued his address on Appleton's Early History at the meeting of Rotary club at Hotel Northern Tuesday noon. Dr. Raney gave the first section of the historical survey several weeks ago.

At first each village, though not really organized as a village, had its own hotel and shops. The hotel in Grand Chute was owned by Cyrus Jackson, two in Appleton by John F. Johnston and William S. Warner, and the one in Lawesburg by Thomas Hanna. Appleton forged ahead of the other two sections, and in 1853 had its own weekly newspaper, the Crescent.

Appleton was originally a part of Brown-co which was organized in 1818, 33 years before the organization of Outagamie-co. Outagamie was made a county in 1851, and Appleton a part of the town of Grand Chute, became a village in 1853. In 1857 the three villages were united, and Division-st became Union-st.

Dr. Raney told of some of the early founders of the village. Dr. H. Sampson, serving under the title of principal, was the first head of Lawrence Institute. In 1853 the first president, Dr. Cooke, was called in from the east. Dr. Cooke was the first of five Lawrence presidents who took their Bachelor of Arts degrees from Wesleyan university at Middletown, Conn.

The present president, Dr. H. M. Wriston, the fifth, John F. Johnston, who now lives in Appleton, was employed to erect a boarding house for the men who were then working on the college. That structure was built where the Wichmann grocery store now stands. Ezra Therber was another of the early homebuilders.

630 Population in '53
Fascinating facts gleaned from the records of the 1850 and 1880 census, now on file in the Madison library, were related by the speaker. In 1850 Appleton had 113 houses, and a population of 630, with half the population showing New York as its birthplace. The remainder came mostly from New England, Canada, and Nova Scotia. There were only 12 Germans in Appleton in 1850, though a great many appeared in the census of 1880. Interesting names found in the early census reports cited by Dr. Raney included Asenith, a girl's name, Caleb, Almira, Huldah, Sylvanus, Schermerhorn, Osro Brenkerhoff, Abner Darling, Sabina, Maranda Proctor, Aaron and Isaac and numerous other Biblical names. "Lake Michigan" and "Lake Huron" Hammers were two of the most peculiar names listed.

Extent of real estate holdings and type of occupation were also given in the census reports. A man might be a clergyman, a farmer, a speculator, lawyer or hotel-keeper, but very often he was listed as just a "gentleman." Some of the interesting real estate holdings at this time were: Edward West, $57,000; Robert Bateman, $25,000; C. P. Richmond, papermaker, $15,000; R. Z. Mason, president of the university, $15,000; Alfred Galpin, owner of a planing mill, $5,000; Anson Ballard, $60,000 real and $10,000 personal property; George W. Spaulding, $20,000; William S. Open Classes in '49
Lumber for the erection of the first college building was assembled in 1848 and some excavating was done. In 1849 the first college building, a first story in stone and three stories of frame construction, was erected in the middle of the block where the Conservatory now stands. In November, 1849 the first classes were conducted in this building. Main hall was built in 1853-54.

Speaking of early transportation, Dr. Raney described how Reeder Smith and his wife on their way to region, drove from Milwaukee to Fond du Lac in an open buggy in December, 1848. Soon the settlers began building plank roads, which were expensive to build and always in need of repair. Later the idea of canals was conceived, and an attempt was made to canalize the Fox and Wisconsin rivers. In 1846 the federal government appropriated a quantity of land to help in financing canal building, and a state board attempted to build canals. A Fox and Wisconsin Improvement company had been organized, and in 1851 the state canal-building project was turned over to this company. In 1856 boats having a three-foot draught travelled from Green Bay to Prairie du Chien by way of canals. In the later stages of the enterprise much of the money behind this project was supplied by Horatio Seymour, an eastern figure of some wealth and prominence. The arrival of the railroad in 1861 precipitated the bankruptcy of the Canal company. In 1865 the federal government took over the responsibility of keeping the rivers open, the hydraulic power control went to the Green Bay and Mississippi Canal company, and the majority of the land was turned over to Horatio Seymour and the other eastern capitalists.

Occupations developed from farming to planing and saw mill, then to grist and flour mills, and on to paper mills. The first paper mill

CREDIT TEACHERS FOR MAKING TRIP TO EUROPE IN '31

Outagamie-co rural school teachers who go to Europe next summer on the educational pilgrimage planned by A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, will be credited with a full summer school session. This announcement was sent to the teachers by Mr. Meating this week.

Mr. Meating pointed out that already more than half the rural school teachers of the county are enrolled for the trip. He is urging the teachers to make their reservations as soon as possible. The 34-day tour, which will include stops at England, France and Belgium, will cost only $249.

"The educational value of a trip of this nature is fully equal to regular attendance at a summer school session and for this reason I am advising teachers who make the trip that they will receive that amount of credit," Mr. Meating said.

Mr. Meating said that the trip was a full summer school session and for this reason I am advising teachers who make the trip that they will receive that amount of credit.

MAN ASKS $12,836 DAMAGES FOR WIFE'S DEATH AFTER CRASH

Suit Against Kaukauna and Kenosha Men Opens in Municipal Court

Damages of $12,836.43 are sought by John T. MacDonald, Laurain, Mich., in a suit against Theodore Kathagen, town of Kaukauna, and Edward Mersey, Kenosha. The case opened in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg this morning with the drawing of a jury. Mersey was made a co-defendant on motion of Kathagen's insurance company.

MacDonald asked damages for the death of his wife following an automobile accident on Highway 41 near Kimberly on May 6, 1930. Mrs. MacDonald was riding with Mr. Mersey when their car collided with Kathagen's machine, as Kathagen attempted to turn into the driveway of Anton DeWitt. Later she died of her injuries.

It is charged by MacDonald, that the accident resulted from Kathagen's careless and negligent driving. The jury was completed Wednesday morning and testimony was to start Wednesday afternoon.

Members of the jury are: Earl Bates, 116 E. Kimball-st; Edward Schwandt, 721 N. Morrison-st; J. W. Doyle, 512 N. Garfield-st; Carl A. Gorroo, 530 N. Superior-st; Rudolph E. Prund, 317 E. A son was born Monday to Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Recker, 524 Fremont-st.

A son was born Tuesday to Mr. and Mrs. James Danielson, 313 S. Outagamie-co, at St. Elizabeth hospital.

was built in 1852, and in 1870-71 the first wood pulp paper was made in Appleton.

Dr. Raney concluded his speech with three conclusions: that the foundations of Appleton are New York and New England, which explain the framework of the city and county government; that the water power in this locality attracted men of considerable wealth; and that the documents dealing with Appleton's early history should be preserved. He suggested that an archive room be established in the new courthouse for the preservation of records. Other types of historical material, he said, could be preserved in the museum of Lawrence college.

YOUTH OF 23 CONFESSES TO ROBBING BANK

Northport Young Man Is Caught With $180 Stolen at Shiocton

wanted to look at and he stopped the car and I let it."

In the meantime Officer Steidl had learned of the chief's encounter with the youth and he went to New London.

Officer Steidl told Lueck he was certain the youth was the robber because he and several men had tracked him through the swamp to the point where he first met the chief. Steidl asked the chief to make an effort to find the youth and hold him for questioning.

Herforth, thinking to disarm further suspicion, went to the police station himself where he learned the officers were looking for him. This was about 6 o'clock. There were several Shiocton men in the police station when Herforth arrived and they searched him but missed the $180, which he had concealed in his shoe.

The Shiocton man, one of whom claimed he had seen the robber, said Herforth was not the man and the chief again permitted him to leave.

Found Keys
Meanwhile Sheriff Lappen had gone to Northport and visited the home of Robert Swinken, where Herforth had been coming. In Herforth's room they found a bunch of keys with Adams name on them and the sheriff decided immediately that Herforth was the robber. He telephoned Officer Steidl to try to catch him but when Steidl reached New London he found Chief Lueck again had released the youth. Checking on the youth's movement Steidl learned he had purchased a ticket to Elmdale and taken a train from New London about 8:15. He immediately telephoned Clintonville and asked Chief Monty to arrest Herforth when the train arrived. However, the telephone call reached Clintonville late or the time the train was due.

Signs Confession
Here Herforth had another of the "bad breaks" which beset him. The locomotive of the train he was riding developed trouble of some sort and had to stop at Sugar Bush. The train thus was delayed and reached Clintonville behind schedule—giving Chief Monty plenty of time to reach the railroad station and take Herforth.

Later last night, after Herforth was brought to the county jail here, he signed a written confession of the robbery. He told police he had stolen the sawed-off shotgun from the Riverside Inn, on the highway between New London and Northport.

Herforth was paroled from the state reformatory at Green Bay last January after serving more than two years of a one to ten year term for burglary. He was sentenced from Milwaukee in June, 1927, after confessing to 12 burglaries on Milwaukee's north side during the early part of 1927.

TAKE TESTIMONY IN 3 WORKMEN'S CASES

Testimony in three cases, arising under the Workmen's Compensation act, was taken in hearings before an examiner for the Wisconsin Industrial commission at the courthouse this morning. Wesley Prentice, 50, Dale, sought compensation for injuries received when he received a shock while working on an electric line and was thrown to a steel frame. The Wisconsin Michigan Power company is the defendant.

Compensation also was asked by Edward Maurer from the Wisconsin Michigan Power company for injuries received when Maurer was burned by electricity. He claims both arms are disabled. William Tennessee, 49, Kaukauna, sought compensation for an injury to his eye, which resulted from a chip of steel entering the eye ball. The Farm Equipment company of Kaukauna is defendant in this case.

DEATHS

OTTO KOBAL
Otto Kopal, operator of a soft drink parlor at W. College-ave, was found dead in his bed about 9:40 Tuesday night by his wife. Heart disease was given as the cause of his death in a report made at one police station. Mr. Kopal had been troubled earlier in the day and visited a physician who advised him to go to bed for rest and quiet. When his wife visited him early in the evening she found he had died.

Survivors are the widow, two sons, Paul, Jr., and Karl; two brothers, Frank of Milwaukee and Karl of Hungary; one sister, Mrs. Frank Brammback, Hungary. He was a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. The body was taken to the Schommer Funeral home from where the funeral will be held at 8:30 Friday morning. Services will be held at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph church, with burial in St. Joseph cemetery. Prayer services will be held at 7:30 Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Boy Gives Blood To Help Save Life Of School Friend

Ben Hensel, president of the sophomore class at Appleton high school, is in a critical condition at St. Elizabeth hospital with an infection of the blood stream. A blood transfusion made Tuesday afternoon improved his condition somewhat, but it will take several days before the extent of the improvement can be determined.

Robert Sellers, son of Mrs. Altha Sellers, 422 S. State-st, was chosen from a large group of high school students and faculty members to supply blood for the transfusion. The call for blood was responded to by the entire football squad, and enough high school students and teachers to fill a room at the hospital. Sellers blood was most compatible with Hensel's, so he submitted to the transfusion.

The Hensel boy has been ill for about three weeks. A sore throat developed into a sinus infection, and over the weekend the infection became general.

Hensel, the son of Mrs. Mary S. Hensel, 921 E. Elmdale-ave, was on the varsity football squad last fall. He entered high school this year from Roosevelt junior high school where he was a council member and on the junior police patrol.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jarcho, son Walter, and Elmer Severson, Leeman, have returned from a two weeks' hunting trip in the north.

PEOPLE'S GAS, LIGHT AND COKE CO. PROFITABLE

Supplies Gas to City of Chicago Without Any Competition

By GEORGE T. HUGHES
Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
(Editor's Note: This is the eleventh of a series on the subject of public utilities, covering the principal operating and holding companies, giving their history, field of operations and an analysis of the capital structure. Mr. Hughes will discuss bonds as well as stocks but will present the facts without any attempt to recommend purchase or sale of specific securities.)

New York—Another Chicago public utility investment in the capital stock of which has always proved profitable is the Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company. Supplying gas to the City of Chicago without competition with the exception of the period between 1918 and 1922 inclusive the company has paid dividends regularly at one rate or another for many years. Since 1925 the rate has been $3 a share annually but that has been only a part of the return to shareholders.

In 1925 and in every year since rights to subscribe to additional stock at par have been offered and the market price of these rights has ranged between $1 and $15 a share. Over these six years the low price for the rights has averaged $6.25 a share which added to the regular cash dividend gives a total of $14.25 a share annually and capitalizing this amount at 6 per cent a value for the stock of $237.50 a share. This is the explanation of the high market price of the stock and the low return it gives on the cash dividend.

Whether expansion can keep up at the same date and whether the market will continue to anticipate the future are questions to which no exact answer can be given. The point is that Peoples Gas stock sells at a record as a paying investment in a steadily growing enterprise. The capitalization is well balanced and simple. Total funded debt outstanding is $60,465,000 with guaranteed bonds to an additional amount of $12,500,000. The stock is of one class, of $100 par outstanding to the amount of $62,163,900.

So far the current business depression has had no unfavorable effect on earnings. Net income for the nine months ending September 30, 1930, was $4,927,412 against $4,832,686 in the same period a year ago. On a per share basis net for the first nine months this year was $8.09 a share against $8.53 a share in 1929 on a smaller number of shares.

MILK PRICES LOWEST IN STATE SINCE '16

Madison—(AP)—Milk prices in Wisconsin last month were the lowest since 1916 and production on Dec. 1 was greater than that of the same date last year, the U. S. and Wisconsin Departments of Agriculture announced today.

Prices averaged $1.65 per hundred pounds during November. The index of November milk prices for Wisconsin based on a 1910-1914 average stood at 112 last month as compared with 154 a year ago.

The average of $1.69 in October was the highest for the current season. Like a year ago, the price fell in November.

The average production of milk per cow on Dec. 1, 1930, was 22.9 pounds as compared with 22.9 pounds last year. Production increased generally throughout the nation, the departments said. There are more cows in Wisconsin farms at the present time than at any time in several years.

"When the year 1930 is taken as a whole, the average milk production per cow was somewhat below 1929 but it was exactly equal to that of 1927," the departments reported. "This year, however, the somewhat smaller production per cow for the year as a whole is more than offset by an increased number of cows."

Butter and cheese trading continued dull during November. Prices declined sharply during the second week of the month in the butter market but the low prices levels failed to stimulate buying, the department said.

BALL PLAYERS HUNT AND GOLF AT ANTIGO

Antigo—(AP)—Two well known baseball players established a record in these parts when they combined deer hunting with golf—in December. The pair, Al Simmons, outfielder for the Athletics in the American league and Ralph Shummers of the Baltimore club in the International league, were the guests of R. J. McQuillan. When the hunting season opened they spent a week north of here.

The decline was particularly sharp on the Chicago market. Primary cheese markets developed nervousness during the first week of the month as the month progressed trading continued dull.

GAME BIRDS THRIVE IN COUNTY WILDS

But Conservationists Hear That Hunters Are Shooting Many

Although there is a state law preventing killing of pheasants and partridges in Outagamie-co, many birds set out by county conservation groups, especially those in Center Swamp, are being killed by hunters. According to reports reaching organizations in Appleton. When birds have been set out in areas where hunters can easily be observed birds are thriving and multiplying rapidly.

Reports from the western part of the county and from the territory north of Kaukauna are that there are large numbers of the birds. The birds also are thriving in the area south of Medina.

At the present time sportsmen are considering winter feeding for the birds. There is no immediate need of supplying the birds with food, it is said, except in areas where grass and brush has been burned over and the food destroyed. Until deep snows come it is said the birds will take care of themselves.

Kaukauna conservationists have annually fed birds. Outagamie-co

SEVERAL MILLIONS ARE LOANED TO WAREHOUSES

Madison—(AP)—Several millions of dollars in loans with interest rates as low as two per cent have been made to bonded warehouses of farmers' cooperative in Wisconsin during the last two years, according to C. N. Pulley, warehouse inspector for the department of agriculture and markets.

Mr. Pulley cites that six years ago only one bonded warehouse was able to take advantage of loans, while today 43 such places borrow money. Cannery, grain elevators, cheese and tobacco cooperatives are making use of the bonding privileges, he says, adding that the federal government has recently allowed the issuance of warehouse receipts on bundle tobacco.

Fish and Game association has a feeding place at Shotton and conservationists maintain feeding places at Houtsville.

Generally, conservationists in the county are well pleased with the progress they have been making in stocking the county with the birds. While unmolested by hunters the birds are multiplying fast and can often be seen in wooded areas along highways.

Australia's sheep population this year is about 100,000,000, which is 10 times the number of human inhabitants.

THE HIGH SCHOOL PROBLEM

The board of education, mindful that the public in the last analysis, must determine when and where a new high school is to be built, is seeking the help of an advisory committee in working out the school problem. Four organizations, the Trades and Labor Council, American Legion, Chamber of Commerce and Appleton Woman's club will be invited to assist in forming this committee, which, it is expected, will be a cross-section of citizen opinion in the matter.

There is abundant evidence that the present high school building is crowded far beyond its capacity for efficient educational work. It houses more than twice as many students as its rated capacity and difficulties are increased each year by growing enrollment. It is evident that this condition cannot continue without paying a severe penalty in decreased teaching efficiency.

While there can scarcely be any question as to whether increased school facilities are needed, there is much to be said, however, about whether an entirely new school should be erected in another location or whether the present structure should be enlarged by construction of additional units. In the discussions that preceded the vote on the purchase of Riverside Country club grounds as a school site the emphasis was all on a new site and relatively little was said about the possibilities of additional units on or near the present high school grounds.

Among other things which should be given consideration in the study of the high school problem is the relation of a new school building to the entire building program of the city and county. If a new building is erected on another location some disposition must be made of the present structure and this matter might be considered with reference to the need for a city hall. On the other hand, if there is a probability that the county and city might unite in a combined city hall and courthouse then some other use must be found for the high school building.

The principal consideration, however, must be the efficiency of the school system, and the probabilities of future development of Appleton. The immediate cost, while important, should not be permitted to influence judgment to the extent that a serious mistake is made.

The desire of the board of education to ascertain public sentiment in the matter is commendable. Men and women on the advisory committee should attack the problem with all the energy and ability they possess.

SPEED

German scientists are predicting a speed of a thousand miles per hour and that within the next twenty years it will be possible to make rocket flights from Berlin to New York in three hours. The ordinary automobile now may be speeded up close to ninety miles per hour. Giant ships plow the seas from American to European shores in a little over four days, and an international race is on for the speed laurels of the sea. Airplanes have been constructed to hurtle themselves through space faster than six miles per minute. Thundering trains rush through the night with wheels spinning faster and faster. Wireless messages flash around the world with the speed of light.

Always is the demand for speed, more speed and still more speed. Speed in production is the urge of the manufacturer, and machines and tools are built to that end. Over 8,000 automobiles are produced in one factory in one day. The speed of wireless saves lives at sea and transmits messages to the far corners of the earth with lightning rapidity.

Speed in some lines saves time, time to enjoy the pleasant things in life, time for leisure, recreation, reading, study, culture. There is virtue in speed but in many respects there is disaster too, for speed gives little rest and mankind, "from the cradle to the grave," must have rest, else the grave will come too soon. The advantages of speed are obvious but its disadvantages, unfortunately, are insidious. In many respects we have made a rate of speed for our lives greater than human organisms can bear. That is the vice in the situation.

THE SPANISH REVOLT

While unhappy economic conditions will be given as the cause of the Spanish disturbances which have finally flared out into open revolt, and no doubt they are a contributing factor, yet there is a deeper one, a cause composed of the scars and wounds of ruthless rule, the dictatorship.

The iron hand in government among enlightened or civilized peoples cannot be used without leaving marks requiring time, sometimes generations, to remove. Resentment against unbridled authority is as certain, although perhaps even more explosive than that aimed at incompetency or profligacy in the conduct of governmental affairs.

The course of dictatorships the world over is generally the same. Their cause in democracies, as well as limited or liberal monarchies, usually consists of excesses in the line of political inefficiency or corruption, in the face of which the people fail to appreciate or rise to the demands of the hour and then slowly become convinced that the usual and ordinary processes of the law are not sufficient to cure the ailment and that all law must be trampled upon for the purpose of eradicating a condition that has grown up through their own carelessness. It is merely a swing from one end of the pendulum to the other, from one excess to another excess, in which the people knowing the evils they face and disliking them plunge blindly into a system containing evils usually greater than those they have escaped, or submit to the forging of the fetters of absolute rule upon them to avoid the natural results of their own lack of wisdom.

But after the arbitrary rule of the dictator has righted the civil disturbances of which they have complained they find the fetters more enduring than they had expected. Their mouths are closed to discussion. Their eyes read a spineless press, clipped by the sharp scissors of censorship. The principles of free government fashioned after so many centuries of experience to protect the individual even from the tyranny of the majority are trampled everywhere under foot. Jail doors yawn for a shrug of the shoulder, an arched eyebrow, a disdainful grimace. Then, but too late, they realize with Cowper that "freedom has a thousand charms to show, that slaves however contented, never know."

It is difficult to find a call or cause for a dictator in a democracy although they are not unknown. But there is cause, and it should be an insistent one for the people living under a democratic form of government and therefore responsible for its vices as well as its virtues, to examine carefully into their own governmental shortcomings, to measure plans or programs by fit rules of right and justice, for a government that may withstand some practices that are highly injurious, may be lastingly injured by their continuance.

To blame the king of Spain is just a matter of looking for a goat. He is but an individual who has inherited in common with others an age-old system that is fast fading out. He has had little to do with the actual ruling of Spain. It were better so, for a prince without ability but assuming to direct the affairs of state makes a nation grope blindly about not knowing even faintly where it is going or what it is all about. His blunder consisted in consenting to the dictatorship, or at least in consenting to its long continuance, but long usage as well as ineptness for the science of government dictated the king's conduct in obeying the wishes of his ministers despite what may have been his own individual wishes or convictions, if he had any.

The reason for the slacking up in buying is easy. We're all such a bunch of optimists that we're waiting for other people to give us for Christmas the things we ought to be buying ourselves.

FIRST AIRPLANE FLIGHT

On Dec. 17, 1903, the first successful airplane flight took place at Kitty Hawk, N. C., when Orville Wright, an American inventor, piloted the first powered, heavier-than-air machine. The machine, with pilot aboard, made four sustained flights. The longest of these had a duration of 59 seconds and a speed of 30 miles an hour.

Orville and his brother, Wilbur, were interested in aviation as bicycle mechanics in Dayton, O. They found in their experiments that existing scientific data of aerodynamics was almost all guesswork and began to make investigations of their own.

The flight at Kitty Hawk was the result of their joint efforts. After their further experiments led to the development of an airplane which established a new record on Sept. 12, 1908, by remaining in the air one hour and 15 minutes.

Following tests at Fort Myer, Va., the United States government accepted the Wright machine. Many honors were bestowed on the two brothers during the numerous demonstrations they made in Europe during 1908 and 1909.

The original Kitty Hawk machine is now exhibited in the science museum at South Kensington, London.

DIATHERMY TREATMENT OF TONSILS IN CASES OF H. B. P.

Among the special "indications," as doctors say, for diathermy extrication of the tonsils, or contraindications for the old Spanish custom, are advanced age of patient, arterio-sclerosis, heart disease, and chronic nephritis. Obviously patients with such conditions are not good risks for a major operation or for a general anesthetic. To often such handicapped patients, altho subject to infected tonsils which the physician believes to be the source of some or all of the trouble, are dismissed by the inept doctor as not amenable to treatment. When a doctor, in this day of enlightenment, so fails, the intelligent patient will do well to drop him, for certainly he is not a well educated physician and certainly he is not a competent man to rely on. Even if he be committed as condemning diathermy for such handicapped patients, the man can still offer them the possible benefit of X-ray treatment, which, while not comparable with diathermy, still does prove a fairly satisfactory alternative in some cases.

I have been impressed by the frequent mention of high blood pressure in letters I receive from people who have been fortunate enough to find a doctor who is prepared to give the diathermy treatment for infected tonsils.

One woman aged 50 years tells me how she traveled from her city to a country village about 15 miles away, to a doctor who gave her the diathermy treatment. She says: "I had a diseased tonsil. My doctor could not remove it as I had a blood pressure over 200 and my heart was affected. Dr. (the country doctor) removed it in four treatments. After each treatment I went home and ate a good dinner. Next day the throat was quite sore but I never missed a meal. My doctor here was skeptical, but he admits now that the tonsil is gone and the throat is as clear as can be."

Another lucky patient writes: "On your kind recommendation I called on Dr. (a city man who is a master of the method)—in reference to having diathermy treatment for the arthritis. . . . I am 69 years old, and he took out my tonsils, which were four times the normal size and ulcerated, by the diathermy method without any pain, loss of time from work or interference with regular meals. I say persons older than myself having the treatment. Before the doctor removed my tonsils my blood pressure was 205-105 and now the pressure is down to 155-85."

It is gradually becoming known, even to laymen, that high blood pressure is not a condition susceptible to treatment without particular concern about its cause. It is well recognized by physicians that a neglected septic focus may produce high blood pressure. Unfortunately a high blood pressure renders a major operation or a general anesthetic too risky, and so it happens that a good many such patients are denied proper medical treatment because their doctors are too credulous of the views of certain medical journal editors and narrow gauge specialists.

Perhaps the greatest value of the diathermy method is in precisely such cases—where the patient harbors a septic focus in a tonsil, but is a poor risk for surgical attack. Even if the diathermy treatment fails to do any good, at least it is safe for any one.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Test of Paternity.

Is there any known test by which it can be definitely determined whether a man is a father of a child, where there is a question raised? (Mrs. F. W. R.)

Answer.—No. Blood grouping tests, which any good laboratory pathologist can make, will give proof in certain cases that the man implicated in NOT the father of the child, by well established laws of heredity. A man's chance to prove his innocence by this test is one in seven.

Massage Your Liver.

I would be glad of any suggestion with regard to special food or exercise that would promote the activity of a very lazy liver. (O. C.)

Answer.—Please tell me how you determine that the liver is lazy. I've never been able to learn how. Give our Somersaultauqua. Copy of the by-laws will be sent you an receipt of your request (no clipping) and stamped envelope bearing your address. The belly-breathing exercise as recommended by Dr. Cielia Duell Mosher, Dr. Samuel Delano, and Dr. Israel Rappaport, for functional troubles of women, asthma and other respiratory diseases, and high blood pressure, respectively, is perhaps the best way to massage your liver. I have given the directions for this belly exercise here many times. I shall give it again from time to time.

The Well Educated Woman.

My daughter is interested in athletics and plans to take a course in physical education at —, but has been informed it is very strenuous for girls and that the abdominal muscles become so tense that it would be dangerous to hear children. . . . (Mrs. L. E.)

Answer.—I know of nothing better than such a course in a school of standing to fit a woman for filling her place in life. There is no such thing as the abdominal muscles being too well developed or too tense. Your informant merely expresses an old tradition or delusion. However, interest in athletics is not synonymous with interest in physical education.

Is It Rheumatism?

My husband has pain in his shoulder, aches at night and morning, the pain switches from one place to another. . . . is it rheumatism? (Mrs. J. H. T.)

Answer.—Assuming it is, we're not much forrader. What is rheumatism? Nobody knows. Send stamped envelope bearing your address for the best advice I can give about rheumatism.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

OUR Clown? He was really lost. The others knew, at any cost, that they must start to search for him and search till he is found. The Travel Man said, "Have no fear. I'm sure he must be right near here. It's likely that he crouched down in a place that's safe and sound."

"As long as sand is in the air I'm sure that he will stay right there. It's hard to fight a sandstorm 'cause the sand blows in your eyes. I hardly think this blow will last so very long. It's drifting past. The dark clouds are not drifting quite so fast, up in the sky."

Poor Scotty Tynmites looked sad. Said he, "I think this is too bad. Supposin', when we start to look, that Clowny isn't found. The sand has played a real mean trick and, frankly, I am worried sick. I wish the time would hurry up, when we can search around."

Just then the wind began to die and all the Tynmites heaved a sigh. The air was clearing up real fast. The Travel Man soon said, "I think before we all start out to look for Clowny, we should shout. Perhaps the lad will hear us. Then, if not, we'll move ahead."

The Tynmites thought this plan was good. They yelled as loudly as they could. "Too, too! Hey, Clowny! Here we are!" And then they yelled some more. The Travel Man jumped on the truck and said, "With these I may have luck." He peered out through glass screens till his eyes were tired and sore.

Poor Clowny, in the meantime, was too far away to hear because he'd trudged on through the whistling sand. Of course he didn't know that this direction was all wrong. That's why he traveled right along. At first he walked real fast, but now his steps were rather slow.

(Clowny meets a daughter of the desert in the next story.)

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—High atop the big stacks in the library of Congress may be found a genial, pleasant, always obliging man in a burlap which reminds one of a bank vault—

His name is V. Valta Parma, librarian in charge of the rare book section.

Behind the steel bars of "banker's cages" he stands guard over some of the rarest books. A visitor there is immediately aware of an air of aloofness—up on the top floor, high above the common books.

And he is impressed the more when, after his credentials have gained him admittance, Parma himself brings out carefully and cautiously some of his treasured volumes.

For these inanimate objects are alive to him—live, human stories of man's progress. A large, square, slim volume selected at random displays a place of the Gutenberg Bible. It is one of the first printed pages in the history of the world—the Germany's initial experiment with moveable type.

Old Folios

To another shelf, and Parma brings forth an ordinary looking book in a modern, dark blue binding. Among the most called-for books in the library, it is said to be one of the two copies in existence. The other is in the library, too—Adam H. Dickey's memoirs of Mary Baker Eddy. All other copies are believed destroyed.

On another shelf are five delicate but securely bound volumes representing a fabulous sum to book dealers—the first five editions of Isaac Walton's "Complete Angler."

And not far away are the first four folios of Shakespeare's works.

There is another—a volume published in 1668 and believed one of two copies in existence—Roger Williams' "Key Into The Language Of America Called New England." It is the attempt of a puzzled Englishman to give handy translations of the Indian languages to the early settlers in America.

Valuable

And there is a history of the Plymouth colony written in 1622, two years after the founding of the settlement. Parma considers it among the most valuable books in the collection. He says this history has been of great assistance to research workers in American history.

There are others—thousands of them. The collection is being increased gradually. The Voltaire collection, in which is included an original of the Gutenberg Bible, and which congress agreed to buy at its latest session, will find space on the shelves in Parma's cages.

There one may find compiled all examples of printed work, from the early days of Gutenberg in Germany, Bodoni in Italy, the Aldine press, Caxton in England, and from William Morris, who made Chaucer a thing of physical beauty, to and through the modern presses.

TEXTILE INDUSTRY THROWS OFF SLUMP ALL OVER COUNTRY

Silk and Cotton Lines Are Especially Improved, Leaders Report

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
Washington (CPA)—The textile industry, especially in the silk and cotton lines, is showing marked improvement. The significance of that the general public has in the fact that there are more workers engaged in the industry as a whole than in any other field of industrial endeavor.

For some years the textile industry has been in the dumps. It is pulling itself out by its boot straps at a time when other lines are experiencing depression.

Industrial experts declare that this is because it has "cleared house" and put itself in a strong statistical position. The industry has been over-embellished and this situation has been met not only by holding production close to consumptive demand, but by finding new uses for cloth and new outlets for products.

For years the cotton, silk and wool textile men bemoaned the fact that short skirts had curtailed consumption of fabrics. Then they found that if prices and quality and design were right, women would wear more short skirted dresses and really used more fabric. Now the skirts are long again and this trend is still in full swing, for prices and quality and design have been made right.

Get Quality, Beauty

Experienced women shoppers say that not in many years has it been possible to buy fabrics of such high quality and beauty for so little. In former years there were the so-called "staples," especially in woolsens and cottons, and the "specialties." Now any specialty which has a sales appeal is a staple until it is supplanted.

The industry has been aided also by the advantageous prices at which manufacturers could buy raw materials. Prices today are about one-half what they were a year ago. For example, the average price of cotton has fallen about 50 per cent. Silk prices for Japanese No. 1 grade show a decline of around $2.50 a pound as compared with a year ago. Wool is about 20 per cent cheaper. It should not be inferred that profits of the textile mills have increased by such percentages. After all, the raw material costs are only one item and in some cases not the major one in producing profits for the manufacturer.

Plants have been improved. Worker efficiency has increased decidedly, especially in the south although labor disputes have arisen.

Best of all, stocks of finished goods have been reduced to a point where they no longer exercise a depressing influence on prices. It is estimated that only about one month's supply now is in stock. Naturally the improvement in the position of finished goods will sooner or later exercise a favorable influence on the raw staples. This is likely to be more noticeable in cotton and silk than in wool, because world supplies of wool are heavy and the woolen lines have lagged behind the others.

HUNT SEA ELEPHANTS ON ISLAND OF DESOLATION

Havre, France.—(AP)—"Sea-elephant hunting in the vicinity of the Island of Desolation" was the destination entered on the charter of the steamer Austral, which cleared from this port recently.

The Austral, a 700 ton ship, was overhauled here and among the material taken aboard were two motor boats and one gross of spears and lances.

The Island of Desolation is one of a group in the Indian Ocean, known in French geography as the Kerguelens.

HERE'S LATEST TAX— IT'S ON WATERFLEAS

Bernburg, Germany.—(AP)—Now that cats, dogs, horses and other animals have been regular taxpayers, why shouldn't waterfleas also contribute to the empty town treasury?

A large pond belonging to the village Gross Pooley, near here, is infested with waterfleas. So the aldermen decided to place a tax on the catching of these "community fleas."

When an inhabitant acquired the sole right to catch fleas in the pond he had to sign a lease which provides that the annual tax of $25 on waterfleas must be prepaid.

"I Don't Know" Held As Most Famous Last Words

Madison — If physicians were to record the most numerous expressions of the famous last words of persons who had been injured almost the uniform decision would be "I don't know." The Educational Committee of the State Medical Society declared today that the phrase, "I don't know" causes more ruin to health and happiness than any other three words in the English language.

"I did not know that the gun was loaded," declared the boy whose sister was dead before him.

"Ducky Dickey Dennison didn't know that the bright little brass cylinder that slipped so snugly over the end of his pencil was a dynamite cap," continues the bulletin of the Medical Society in urging that people be more cautious in things they do.

"Dashing Dan Tucker came home late from a banquet of some sort and meant to take a dyspepsia tablet. He didn't know that someone had rearranged the bottles in the medicine cabinet, and that he really took ten grains of bichloride, but the coroner and the family have figured it out since."

"In any collection of famous last words you will invariably find at the top of the list, 'I didn't know that the train was coming,' 'I didn't know that Imported Scotch was things they don't know that kill.'"

AIR MEET ATTRACTS LEADING AVIATORS

Col. Eddie Rickenbacker and Al Williams to Play Big Part

Miami, Fla. — (AP) — Metropolitan Miami is seeking recognition as the scene of the world's largest flying tournament as aviation enthusiasts prepare for the third All-American air meet here January 8-10.

Aviators from North, South and Central America and the West Indies will participate in the 1931 air carnival sponsored by the city of Miami.

Speed races, headed by Al Williams, former navy flier, safety races and distance events have been recorded on the program. As the modern knights of the air enter the lists in competition for $10,000 in cash prizes.

Invitations will be sent through Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson to foreign aviators to take part in the meet. Andrew Heermann, city aviation director, announced.

Col. Eddie Rickenbacker, America's foremost war time ace, has accepted an invitation to act as official starter at the meet.

The application of various safety features of modern flying will be stressed during the meet. Heermann said. In addition, novel de-

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
London.—Salesmanship and showmanship are again, in the view of the prince of Wales. In a "wake-up" address in behalf of British trade he spoke of "the great game of commerce, a game in which, it seems to me, the very best qualities of character, mind and body are required. If it is to be played with full success."

NEW VOGUE FOR VEILS STRIKES PARIS STYLES

Paris — (AP) — French women seem to have changed their minds about veils.

When milliners first launched them more than a year ago, the vogue blazed merrily for a time and then burned itself out. They were called whoopee veils. The smart few said that the wrong persons were wearing "whoopees."

Now the pendulum suddenly has swung to the other extreme. Some are wearing sheer short veils that just clear their eyebrows. Usually they are closely fitted and without pattern.

And sport togs are not the only plaid in present styles.

One daytime costume of an important dressmaking house with a social register clientele is a black divy with three-quarter coat over a black and white shepherd's plaid skirt. Scotch plaid lined and trimmed coats also are a factor to consider in styles which have succeeded here in a big way.

Reading Is Helpful To Children

BY ANGELO PATRI

For weeks Mary had been falling behind her classes. She lost interest in everything that meant school work. A poor report card, a loss of class standing, deprivation of special privileges, all fell upon Mary without effect.

"The only thing Mary wants to do is read."

"Does she read much?"

"She would read every waking minute if I let her. But I don't let her. I took every book she had and locked them up and I forbade the library to give her any. Then that child, just shows you how persistent she is, borrowed books and hid them. Of course I found her and I punished her for getting them. She can't read any books this term."

"What sort of books does she read?"

"Story books. She liked the Daughter of the Seine, and Jane Eyre and Tom Sawyer. Such books are all right, of course, but Mary has all the books she wants in her school work. They are enough. I think reading story books took her mind off her work and that's why she is failing."

"Mary, said the history teacher," your mother says you want to read books all the time."

"Well, I do."

"How about getting in time for school work?"

"I was getting in my school work all right. I had good marks up to the time my mother took my books away. I can't just read text books. They're too stupid. I ought to have something else to read."

"If you were allowed to read in the evening after you had done your lessons for the next day would you feel better? Do you think it would help your lessons or hinder them?"

Of course I think it would help. I'm not dumb, but when you can't read anything but text books you get dumb. That is if you're like me. I have to have books. I can't get along without books."

"Do as you like," said Mary's mother when the teacher spoke to her about allowing Mary to read in the evening. "I think it is all wrong, but if you think it is right I'll give in and let you have your way. If she improves next month then I'll think I'm wrong and you're right, but if she doesn't, then you're wrong."

Mary was told that she could read after she had finished her work every evening until her regular bedtime. The books selected were good ones, and interesting to a child of Mary's age and tastes. Before the end of the month she had made up her work and was standing about the middle of the class. That was about where her ability would place her, the teacher said. But by the end of the term Mary was among the upper ten.

There are children who read books as old men chew tobacco, to make their minds believe they are occupied. That sort of reading is not to be encouraged. There are children who never read at all, that attitude is not to be encouraged. Children need good books. If we steadily place them before children, if we make it possible for them to read in peace and comfort, if we hold to the happy medium between must benefit. Reading is one of the best habits a child can form. (Copyright, 1930, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

CLOSER SCRUTINY OF BAUMES LAW IS SEEN IN NEW YORK

Inquiry into Magistrates' Courts to Bring Side Investigation

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
New York—(CFA)—It is indicated that one of the by-products of the Kresel-Seabury inquiry into the New York magistrates' courts will be a re-examination of the Baumes laws and a side investigation of the theory and working of habitual criminal statutes in general.

Two years ago, when the New York police were carrying on their campaign for a raise in pay, one of their main contentions was that under the Baumes laws, automatically sentencing a fourth offender to life imprisonment, police work was much more hazardous than it had ever been before. The "three-time loser," said the police, was always inclined to shoot his way out, rather than face the certainty of a life term. They cited lists of policemen killed by desperate men who, under the old conditions, would have "taken the rap."

Isidor Kresel, special counsel for the appellate division inquiry, exploring the underground maze of lies and judicial corruption, now turns up another count against the Baumes laws, about which, naturally enough, the police have had nothing to say. It is that the hard-pressed third offender not only has a loose trigger finger but that he has found it possible to buy his way through.

Criminals Financed
Evidence of police corruption uncovered by Mr. Kresel and his aides—disclosures which are threatening the most disastrous police upheaval of many years—light up the fact that the criminal forces are more heavily financed and more efficiently organized than ever before. Back in the thirties, Inspector Ryan found it quite possible to club over vicious and desperate gangs out of existence. That's all in the past. Two years ago Commissioner Whelan appropriated Inspector Ryan's slogan—"there is more law in the end of a night stick than in a decision of the supreme court." The flourish of clubs, with their occasional descent on some hapless skull, was quite futile. The gaudier gangsters, like "Legs" Diamond, continued to pass unscathed through the courts and to fraternize with police and court officials. The leading crime mergers were quite immune.

Hence the current probe, undoubtedly the most searching and distorted inquiry of the kind ever made here, drifts inevitably toward that modern institutional contrivance known as the "fix." It has already uncovered a swarm of intermediaries between the criminal and the police, and, according to Mr. Kresel's preliminary findings, the habitual criminal laws have vastly enhanced the value of the commodity which the middlemen have to sell.

New Reform Revealed
This inquiry has disclosed reform in America in an entirely new garb. This correspondent asked an official of the women's city club, active and pensive in city affairs, whether the club would lead a movement against the exploitation of women as revealed in the disclosures already made.

"The trouble with such agitation," she replied, "has always been that the uplifters have had too much emotion and too few facts. We have observers at this investigation and we are gathering all the facts we can on our own account. If we act later, it will be on the basis of facts and not suppositions. It is our conclusion that all social betterment movement in America have suffered from the lack of complete and accurate information. We believe Mr. Kresel is performing a great public service in this inquiry, and we have plans for vigorous action, but if we call mass meetings or if we go to the legislature to work for reform of procedure in the magistrates' courts, we are going to know exactly what we are talking about."

CLASSES FOR UNEMPLOYED

The Story of Sue
by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

SARAH went home from the office of Thornton Curtis and Thornton and made out a budget. She stuck her tongue in one cheek and stared at the budget for several minutes when it was ready.
"I'm sorry," she addressed herself when she had finished. "But not even you can live on that and keep up an automobile. The chariot of your better days must go. The clock has been losing time and Cinderella is home from the ball."
She went to the telephone and called a garage. She might as well find out how much she could get for the car, she reasoned. But with the agency at the other end of the line she suddenly decided to call Ted and ask him. He was an expert at judging such things. He would know. And she would get to see him.
She tried to tell herself that she didn't care if she got him or not, but all the time she was holding her breath for fear he wouldn't be in. She had such an empty, excited feeling in her stomach that she wished one minute that he would be gone, so she wouldn't have to tell him. But the next she was afraid that perhaps that wish would come true.
When the secretary answered the telephone, Sarah found herself wondering what the girl was like.
"Just a minute, I'll see if Mr. Merryman is still here. Who shall I say wishes to speak to him?" the silver tones caroled.
Sarah hadn't intended to tell her name. She hadn't thought that it would be necessary. But she found herself repeating it.
"Oh yes, Miss Slade. Just a minute."
It seemed to Sarah that she had been waiting an eternity when the fluted tones came again. She had heard the rumble of voices and had supposed that Ted was being given the information.
She had expected his voice to answer her, not the girl's.
"I'm so sorry, Miss Slade, but it isn't possible for Mr. Merryman to come to the phone just now. Shall I have him call you later?"
"No, never mind. Just cancel the call. It isn't important."
Sarah hung up the receiver dully. So Ted hadn't wanted to talk to her. She meant as little as all that to him. She sat down in a chair and stared at the floor. It was a gray day and the whole room seemed to have caught the somber hue. Nothing sparkled. Everything was monotonous.
"Oh, don't be an idiot," she reproved herself. "If there is anything that is detestable it is a girl grieving for a man who doesn't even care if she is dead or living! And you know you didn't want him. You haven't even thought of him lately!"
She arose and pulled down the blinds, turned on the lights, although it was daytime, and touched a match to the fire laid on the hearth. Then she sat down and stared at the flames.
"It isn't that I thought I could get him back. It's just that I wanted to see him again. And he wouldn't come. He treated me like an agent who wanted to sell him something he didn't want to buy. From now on I'm through with him. I'll be gay... gay... gay. Nothing matters! Nothing!"
Her head went down on her arms and a sob caught her breath. "Oh, I guess I still do care... awfully... but I just didn't know it till now!"

Out of chaos there may come order but chaos never emerges from true order....
But perhaps there never has been true and complete order in any individual, or the earth, or in life itself....
Which may be the reason waiters have flat feet and the service is so often bad when you're in a hurry or hungry!
There are triangles and triangles: and sometimes the modern triangle is a quadrangle....
The good old-fashioned Eternal Triangle, it would appear from some of the modern novels, has become a little triangle....
Indifference to the origins of life and all the moral questions that present, as well as its future potentialities, is a sign of a stagnant mind and an uncultured nature devoid of the most important kind of curiosity....
The truly civilized person will frankly admit he is selfish and by recognizing this fact he shows that he is unselfish. The stream of his life therefore flows evenly....
When the editor of a country newspaper says that a good time was had by all he forgets that a smiling face sometimes hides a hostess' aching heart.
Philosophers are weary and lonely men, but that doesn't explain why fools are light-headed....Not even philosophers can explain that, for even fools try to philosophize....
What appears to be a fault in others often is nothing less than exactly the same fault in us....
A superstitious woman is a woman who has more confidence in superstition than she has in her own common sense....

MAN BUILDS CHURCH ALONE
With no help whatsoever a man at Guernsey, England, has just completed the erection of a church. The work required five years. The edifice is believed to be the smallest in the world. It is 13 feet long, 16 feet high, 10 feet wide and has room for about a dozen persons. A tiny steeple contains a bell.

EXERCISE KEEPS YOUR FEET IN GOOD CONDITION

BY ALICIA HART
You can't have that spring of youth in your walk if you have flat feet.
Well-kept, flexible feet are a first requirement for a step that skims over the earth, in a graceful manner. If your arches bother you, consult a physician. Otherwise, it is your own fault if your feet seem unresponsive, stolid, characterless.
The chances are that they need exercise. Walking gives the whole foot some exercise, but there are many muscles that need more.
Each morning stand in your bare feet and limber up your feet, one foot at a time. Standing firmly on one foot, holding onto a chair if necessary, start wiggling your toes, one at a time until they are loosened up a little and then wobble your foot around on your ankle, preserving an arc as you do it, with your big toe pointing the way.
Circle around to the right, making the arc bigger and bigger until you have stretched your foot all you can. Then reverse the motion, circling back the other way, making the arc larger and larger again.
When you have changed feet and stretched both, stand on one again and shake your leg from the knee, trying to let the foot hang limply. When you can do this is shows that you have exercised the muscles and they are softened, the circulation is good and your foot is perfectly relaxed. These exercises, done morning and night, are a wonderful prevention for cold feet.
Do any certain other foot exercises should be done to strengthen the feet. First, each day walk around on your heels for a change, instead of your toes. It changes your balance and exerts certain muscles that may grow lazy. Second, try rising on your toes and sinking slowly, when you do your morning breathing exercises. This strengthens your arches. Third, stand on your bare feet, with the toes pointed in and make believe you are a child digging your toes into nice, clean, warm mud. This arching them this way and that is the very best exercise in the world for them. As you turn your toes in, you stretch those side-foot muscles which are apt to grow lazy. Last but not least, toe-lining in and walking about the room barefooted gives a fine stretch not only to foot muscles but to those in the outside of the leg.
Many women ask for exercises to correct thick ankles. So far as I know, there are none whatever that can correct this. But often a woman thinks she has thick ankles only because she is gazing upon those of a very slender woman or young girl and hers suffer by comparison. Ankles should be in proportion to your whole build, and what would seem thick on one woman are in perfect proportion on another. So have a little perspective in getting complexes over them.

TOMORROW: Winter care of skin.

My Neighbor Says---

When blankets are to be washed for the first time they should be soaked over night in cold water and then rinsed. This is to remove the sulphur used in bleaching. After this they should be soaked until clear in a luke-warm lather made with boiled soap and water, and then rinsed well in clear water.
A simple way to remove iron rust is to use salt, lemon and sunshine. Apply the salt and lemon and leave the garment in the sun with the spot exposed. If a failure first time, try again. This method never fails.
Fresh tea stains are removed by pouring boiling water over them. Tea stains of long standing should first be soaked in glycerin, then washed with water.
To remove paint and varnish from the hands, first rub well into them a generous quantity of grease or lard, then wash them with soap and water.
When stitching fine material like muslin or crepe de chine on a sewing machine, a seam is often spoiled by being puckered. This disaster may be averted by placing a piece of paper under the material and then sewing the seam. When it is finished the paper can easily be torn away from the stitching.

SEMI-ANNUAL TAX COLLECTION TO BE CONTINUED IN CITY

Half of Assessment Must Be Paid by March 1, Council Decides

Menasha—Continuation of the semi-annual collection of real property taxes was authorized at a meeting of the common council Tuesday evening. The meeting was adjourned to Dec. 26 when the revised and modified zoning ordinance will be presented for passage and bids for repair work on the Mill-st bridge will be opened.

The ordinance covering tax collection provides that if the property owner pays at least one half the assessment by March 1, he may pay the remainder, plus a 1 per cent interest charge, before June 30. The ordinance also provides that the city treasurer is not obliged to accept any part payments on the second installment. No deferred payments on personal property taxes will be allowed.

Before the close of the meeting, Mayor N. G. Remick, presiding, the work of the Good Fellows, Menasha city organization, pointing out that money given to the group is used to assist needy families throughout the city, not only during the holiday season, but during the entire year. The work of the Good Fellows also provides for children who otherwise would be unable to even attend school, the mayor explained.

In urging the council members to cooperate with the organization in the work, the mayor stated that over 75 men had registered at the city offices in search of work and that every effort should be made to provide jobs.

"I'm backing the Good Fellows 100 per cent because I know the men who are doing the work," Mayor Remick said.

Sealed bids on 12 pairs of boots for the fire department were opened, but all bids were rejected because of the lack of samples. The Highway filling station will be awarded the contract to provide four tires for the hook and ladder truck as the result of a $234.20 bid. After deducting the price to be received for the old tires in another transaction, the bid was found to be the lowest of the ones presented.

The purchase of an inhalator for fire department use was suggested, but Alderman Grode moved that the matter be taken up at a later date.

A license to operate a soft drink parlor, issued to Alex Schmitzer, 141 Main-st, was cancelled upon request of the owner and a new permit issued to Mike Dumbowski, who will operate the same place. A petition from the Wisconsin Telephone company relative to two joint pole contracts was referred to the board of public works. A petition from Judge Daniel Sullivan of Milwaukee relative to sidewalk construction and water service extension to his Menasha property also was referred to the board.

Injury Notice Filed
Notice of injury, said to have been caused by a dog on Paris-st, was received. The notice stated that Walter O'Bryan had injured his arm and shoulder in a fall caused by a loose plank over a drainage ditch in the sidewalk last Nov. 25.

A petition for a five year rebate of all taxes on improvements of the Wisconsin Stationers Corporation was granted. The Stationers Corporation already has started work on a new $7,000 building in this city. A petition from property owners on Cemetery-rd for extension of the city electric service was granted, subject to waivers by the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

EAGLE DARTBALLERS DEFEAT RUG TEAM

Bobby Jones Named As Country's Most Outstanding Amateur

RECEIVES SULLIVAN GOLD MEDAL AWARD; DE MAR IS SECOND

Not a Single Reflection on Amateur Status Until Retirement

NEW YORK—(AP)—Bobby Jones' last and greatest campaign has won for him the Sullivan Memorial award as this country's outstanding amateur athlete during 1930.

Jones, who accomplished the unprecedented feat of winning all four major golfing championships in a single year, won out by an overwhelming margin over a field of nine other candidates for the award, given for the first time in memory of James E. Sullivan, pioneer worker in the A. A. U.

The award, a gold medal, goes "to the athlete who by his performances and by his example and influence as an amateur and a man, has done most during the year to advance the cause of sportsmanship."

Some members of the A. A. U. Memorial committee felt that Jones, by abandoning amateur competition and signing a movie contract, automatically had eliminated himself from the contest. But a large majority pointed out that the contestants were to be judged on what they were and what they had accomplished during the year. Furthermore it was the general opinion that the Atlanta's action in signing the movie contract, had been "entirely above board and marked by that frankness and openness which always has been one of his characteristics" and which made him "stand out more than ever as a thorough sportsman."

Not a Single Reflection on his magnificent golf accomplishments the selection committee added that "during the several years he has been in the public eye there has not been a single reflection on his sportsmanship or amateur status."

"By his excellence of performance, retiring nature, disdain for acclaim, helpfulness to and generous spirit toward his opponent and fine example under many trying situations, he has endeared himself to all lovers of amateur sport."

Demar Is Second

Jones received 1625 votes, more than twice as many as the runner-up, Clarence Demar, famous marathon runner from Melrose, Mass., who was given 800. Ballots cast for the other eight candidates follow:

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, tennis, 666.

Helen Madison, Seattle, Wash., swimming, 375.

Barney Berlinger, U. of Pennsylvania, track, 255.

Tommy Hitchcock, polo, 226.

George Simpson, Ohio State, track, 222.

Harlow Rothert, Stanford, track, 156.

Raymond Ruddy, Columbia, swimming, 149.

Stella Walsh, Cleveland, track, 61.

Originally 150 names were nominated by the selection tribunal, composed of 600 outstanding leaders in sport. Of these the Sullivan Memorial committee of the A. A. U. selected ten and these were sent back to the tribunal for final vote. Members of the tribunal were asked to vote for three in the order of their choice, the first to receive five votes, the second, three and the third, one.

WOODY ENGLISH, CUB INFILDER MARRIES

Chicago—(AP)—The "most eligible bachelor" on the Cubs baseball team, Elwood "Woody" English, is no longer "eligible."

The star shortstop married Miss Helen Coleman of Chicago Monday and kept it so secret that the news did not leak out until yesterday when he wired his mother and she told friends.

The romance started when "Woody" on major league romance began on a trip to Chicago. Friends introduced the couple last summer after a baseball game.

"And talk about grounders being muffed with Helen in the stands," English said, "not me. I didn't miss any of them when she was watching and that's a record, I think."

Quint Kempthorne played the center position and picked up three field goals. Quint once performed for Carroll.

Walfoort over at Sheboygan says of Appleton high five, "At least it will not be handicapped by a super abundance of individuals who cramp the style of the team as a unit by their one-man exhibitions."

Dedicate New Fieldhouse To U. W. Sports Tomorrow

MADISON—University of Wisconsin athletes will enter up on a new era with the dedication, Thursday night, of the magnificent new Wisconsin field house on the occasion of the Badgers' inter-sectional basketball game with the University of Pennsylvania.

The field house, so long needed will give Wisconsin facilities for indoor athletics second to those of no other university in the land. During the winter it will be used not only for indoor training and competition in basketball and track athletics but for intramural competition in both sports. With the removal of the basketball floor it will be available for indoor baseball drills, while in the fall it will provide space for football when weather conditions make outdoor work infeasible.

Although Wisconsin's is not the largest field house in the country, it is generally conceded to be the most beautiful and it is the only one containing two full sized basketball courts. Track athletics are well provided for with a one-eighth mile track and pits, runways and circles for jumping, vaulting and shot putting. The field house will receive its track dedication when the indoor conference meet is held in it, March 5 and 6.

The program of the formal dedication exercises Thursday night will be as follows:

PFEFFERLE NAMED VIKI GRID CAPTAIN

Norbert "Doc" Pfefferle, Appleton, was named captain of the Lawrence college football team for 1931 at a meeting of Viking lettermen last night. The election of the grid captain followed a dinner given the squad by Dr. Earl L. Baker, of Lawrence Conservatory of Music and long a follower of Viking grid squads.

Pfefferle played guard and half-back on the 1930 squad, starting at the former post and ending up as blocking half in the backfield. He was comparatively tight but like a certain Mr. Metzger of Notre Dame, makes up for lack of weight with fight. He is a graduate of Appleton high school where he starred in football, basketball and track.

Eddie Kotal, coach of the 1930 grid squad was toastmaster and gave his own song during the jostling minutes of the gathering. Kotal now is athletic director at Stevens-Point state teachers' college.

Other speakers on the evening's program were Ken Laird and Paul Fischl, co-captains of the 1930 squad, Lynn Frankie who was awarded the Snyder cup as the best all-around backfield man, and Bill Bickel, awarded the Sylvester Nielsen cup for being the best line-man.

A. C. Denny, director of athletics, and Dr. Henry M. Wriston, also were speakers. Dr. Wriston was presented with the football used in the Beloit-Lawrence game which Lawrence won 9 and 0. The ball was autographed with signatures of all men who took part in the game.

THREE SLUGGERS TO ASK FOR MORE MONEY

New York—(AP)—Three of baseball's greatest sluggers may give major league club owners in the metropolitan district much annoyance before they sign contracts for 1931.

They are Bill Terry of the Giants; Lou Gehrig of the Yankees, and Babe Herman of the Robins. Terry hit close to 400 and Herman crowded 390 all season. Both are certain to ask for big increases in salary. Gehrig also might be justified in asking for a substantial raise for he was barely beaten out for the American league batting title and led the league in runs batted in.

GIANTS, STAPLETON PLAY RUBBER GAME

New York—(AP)—Benny Friedman's New York Giants and Ken Strong's Stapleton outfit have decided to meet in a rubber game to decide the professional football championship of New York. They will clash in the Polo Grounds Sunday.

The Giants won the first game, a regularly scheduled National pro league contest, 9 to 7 on Friedman's field goal but Stapleton gained revenge, 7-5, on Thanksgiving day.

SELECT CUBS GOING TO LOS ANGELES CLUB

Chicago—(AP)—Several Chicago Cubs, who dislike to leave their major league baseball home, had something to worry about today as they were to be traded to the Los Angeles club.

William Veck of the Cubs and Oscar C. Reishaw, business manager of the Los Angeles club of the Pacific coast league, went into a business huddle.

When the Cubs obtained Pitcher Ed Baecht last month, they gave three players, a bundle of cash and promised to deliver four more Cubs next spring. Today's conference was to determine which ones would be sent to the Angels.

Five brothers, A. Bob, C. G. and M. Durham, are members of the same bowling team at Greensboro, N. C.

West Palm Beach, Fla.—Kid Dule, Newark, outpointed Jackie Purvis, Indianapolis, (10).

WITTENBERG FIRES 16 SPORTS STARS

But Students Counter and Show Offer of Special Inducements

Springfield, O.—(AP)—Charges that Wittenberg college representatives had offered special inducements to obtain the enrollment of two Cleveland high school football stars received the attention of school officials today.

The accusations were made by John Sutter, captain of the Lake-wood high school team, a year ago, and Robert Bader, former all-school star at Cleveland Cathedral Latin, both of whom were dismissed with 14 other members of the Wittenberg freshman squad two weeks ago.

At that time the college announced the ouster, youth had been promised aid by "outside interests," but Sutter and Bader asserted last night that the offer came from officials of the school. Sutter exhibited a letter from D. L. Keyser, director of admissions, which stated that "you may depend on any promises made to you by our representatives."

The dismissal of the 16 freshmen players followed Wittenberg's recent readmission to the Buckeye Athletic association after having voluntarily remained outside the conference for a year because it had been charged with proselytizing.

GREENLEAF FACES FIGHT TO KEEP TITLE

New York—(AP)—Once more Ralph Greenleaf, of New York, faces an uphill battle to retain his world's pocket billiards championship.

As a result of the spectacular play of Erwin Rudolph, Chicago ace Greenleaf must defeat Onofrio Lauri of New York in the championship meet tonight and Rudolph tomorrow night to gain a tie.

Should he accomplish this he then would have to meet Rudolph in a playoff for the title.

That's a large contract for any billiard player but Greenleaf accomplished it last year and he may be able to repeat. At Detroit a year ago Greenleaf defeated Rudolph in the final tournament match to deadlock the final standing and then beat him again the following night to win the title.

Rudolph hung up his sixth successive victory of the tournament last night, defeating Arthur Woods, New York, 135 to 108 in 33 innings. Greenleaf has won four matches and lost one.

Women, admitted free to South Atlantic league baseball games last season, will be required to pay admission in 1931, the association chiefs have decided.

Explosion Shots

By Bobby Jones

THREE ERRORS IN STANCE THAT ONE SHOULD WATCH

IN my last article I said something about how an easy comfortable posture at address could aid in dispelling the tension so often present when the golfer prepares to make a stroke. I suggested that three errors at this point were common, namely, a too-wide stance (feet too widely separated), too much bend in the body over the ball, and as a more or less rigid extension of the arms beyond their natural hanging positions. I think that all three are important enough to watch carefully.

I suppose that if one feature of my own style has attracted any notice it is that my feet are very close together during the execution of every shot from the full drive on down. I am quite certain that my heels in playing any shot are never separated by more than twelve inches without some loss of effectiveness except, of course, where the character of the ground makes an unusual stance necessary, and as I near the hole this distance grows less. This was at first, of course, quite a natural or an accidental procedure, a characteristic developed without thought on my part, although it likely was one of the many features attributable to my imitation of Steve Art Maiden. But I have found since that it is as fundamental a part of my game as anything could be.

Allows Ample Body Turn

So long as my feet remain close together, I have a free use of my hips and shoulders, and an ample body-turn is a simple affair, easy to accomplish fully and without loss of balance. But sometimes when there is a temptation to stretch out a bit in an effort to add a few yards on the end of a drive, the right foot begins to creep back a little bit farther away from the left there is somehow the feeling that this is necessary when one wants to hit exceptionally hard and the stance widens out by several inches. This never fails to let me up. The wider stance jacks my hips, they cannot turn so easily, and this leads to a

Northwestern Picked As Big Ten Cage Contender

BY FRANCIS J. POWERS Copyright, 1930

CHICAGO—Northwestern University, with a share of the Western conference football championship tucked away, now is favored to capture the Big Ten basketball honors. The purple starts its cage campaign with four veterans in the line-up and a sophomore center who hits the hoop like old lead-eye Dick himself. Wisconsin, that always will be a dangerous contender so long as Dr. Walter Meanwell is teaching the Badger and Illinois are expected to be the other leaders in the conference race.

Northwestern's play has been speeded up by the return of Frank Marshall, who was ineligible, last season. Marshall is one of the fastest guards in the middle west and often too speedy for the rest of his team. Marshall not only is a fine floor man but also a good shot from

APPLETON GRIDDERS TO MEET POINT "11"

Will Clash on Lawrence Field, Sept. 19, According to Reports

Stevens Point—A home and home football game with Appleton high school has been arranged by Stevens Point High school athletic department, according to announcement by Harry J. Ringdahl, local athletic director.

Stevens Point will play at Appleton Sept. 19, in 1931, and meet Appleton in the return game at Stevens Point in 1932. To complete this deal it was necessary for Stevens Point to cancel the game which had tentatively been carded for next fall with Shawano.

Sports Question Box

VOCATS, BEARS, WOLVERINES WIN IN "Y" CAGE LOOP

Three Close Games Feature Tuesday Night Program for Older Boys

THREE games were played last night in the Older Boy Basketball league at the Y. M. C. A. The winners were the Vocational school team, the Bears and the Wolverines.

The last game of the evening was between the Vocational school team and the Beta Hi-Y quint, the score being 8 and 6. Each team scored two field goals during the first half the fracas but the Vocats copped two more in the second half while the Betas were getting but one.

Y. M. C. A. Bears had very little trouble beating the Theta Hi-Y club, 10 and 4 in the second game of the evening. The Bears had an 8 to 2 lead in the first half but were held to only one field goal in the second. The Thetas failed to do any better, however, for they got but one field goal, too.

The Soph Triangle club and the Wolverines also staged a close game, the Wolves making a bid for honors by annexing the game 12 and 10. The score at the end of the half was 6 all. The Wolverines profiting by a couple free throws in the second half. Each team had two field goals in the second stanza.

N. Y. COMMISSION DEMANDS MAXIE BATTLE SHARKEY

Must Accept Within 15 Days or Forfeit Claim to Heavy Crown

NEW YORK—(AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission has reshuffled the heavyweight deck without affecting the relative position of the cards. The recognized champion, Max Schmeling of Germany has been notified that he must accept within 15 days a challenge from Jack Sharkey, Boston sailor man. Schmeling was advised of the commission's action in a cablegram, sent by Chairman James A. Farley which said: "There is on file in this office a challenge directed at you by Jack Sharkey. Your six month period in which to defend the title expired Dec. 12. You are directed to advise within 15 days from date your acceptance of the above challenge."

Sharkey thus once more is picked as the logical contender and will get another chance to redeem himself for some of the miserable exhibitions he has put up in important matches. Schmeling won the title last June when Sharkey fouled him. Schmeling's acceptance of the challenge was considered virtually certain but should he refuse it, he will be suspended.

Stribling Ignored
The commission ignored the somewhat general view that W. L. (Young) Stribling of Macon, Ga., is this country's best heavyweight at the moment. The solons apparently took the position that since Sharkey had beaten Stribling once there was no real reason why he should be forced to battle him again. Ignored also were the rising crop of younger heavyweights among whom is Max Baer, Pacific coast slugger, who makes his New York debut against Ernie Schaaf of Boston in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Coincident with the commission's action, it was revealed that the garden had no intention of arranging a match between Stribling and Primo Carnera in Miami, Fla. This winter under this reported arrangement, the winner of the April bout would have met Schmeling for the title in June.

Bill Carey, garden president, told the commission his organization was not dickering at all for Carnera's services. Carnera has been under suspension here ever since his somewhat Malodorous bout with Bombo Chevalier at Oakland, Calif.

STRANGE MATERIALS GO INTO RADIO TUBES

New York—(AP)—Radio tubes contain so many different elements that it requires more than 50 words from an advanced dictionary to list them all.

Included are 14 rare earths, and such familiar items as silver, mercury, aluminum, tin, lead, tungsten, chlorine, helium, iron, zinc, copper, and platinum.

Then there's a lot of strange materials, seldom referred to in every day conversation, such as cesium, strontium, barium, boron, yttrium, titanium, thorium, etc.

Yet, put them all together in the proper sequence, and there's a radio tube.

Writer Questions Worth Of Open Season On Deer

BY B. A. CLAFLIN

We hear so much nowadays about conservation and see so little done in favor of it that we actually wonder if any actual constructive work is being done along that line in Wisconsin. One can scarcely pick up a newspaper without seeing an article on conservation doings, in other states. Pennsylvania, for instance, is constantly in the eyes of the public because of her activities in the realm of her wild life.

There must be something in the way they do things in that state that we do not have in Wisconsin. Some twenty years ago she was practically denuded of all wild life. The wild turkey, once plentiful in her rough mountainous regions, left first. The grouse of her covers followed. Her trout and other game fishes became deplorably scarce. And her deer were all but extinct.

Then, a guardian angel, but one with a fighting spirit as well as gentle demeanor, appeared in the person of Pinchot, the governor who was not only capable as a ruler of state affairs, but who loved the great outdoors and recognized its great value directly or indirectly to every citizen of the commonwealth. Yes, they had a conservation commission, just as Wisconsin has. But Pinchot, knowing their vainglorious impotence cast them aside, or rather made them subservient to his orders, and took the reins in his own hands. He fearlessly exercised the powers vested in him as chief executive, forced constructive action in the face of great opposition—and the result of his wise and determined program has been a return of Pennsylvania to the front rank of state in the matter of wild life.

In twenty years he brought the deer population to such a point of numbers that it was found necessary to open a number of days for doe shooting, and this to be apart from the regular open period for hunting bucks. And it is being repeated this year, which indicates plainly that it was necessary to make a radical move of some kind to control the situation. Personally, I cannot condone the slaughter of does, however. Their number could be reduced in the areas of Pennsylvania by other means—by trapping and transferring to other states, for instance, where they are surely needed.

It is far from constructive conservation to send a handful of game wardens into northern Wisconsin with orders to control the situation, to prevent violations, in other words, it cannot be done. And the rush into our deer county this year is on a par with a gold rush of early days. It has come to such proportions as to be silly and unbecoming to any state. Why has this grand sport degenerated into a mad scramble for people in all walks of life to pursue and slaughter the finest, the most innocent and most beautiful animal we have? Which is the better picture to take back for contemplation—a sight of this graceful animal, agile and alert and happy in his natural environment—or the hump limbs, the glazed eyes, the bloody entrails and quivering flesh? I ask you.

MORO CASTLE TO LOSE WAR CASTLE

Cadets at Havana May Be Transferred to New Military School

Havana—(AP)—Morro Castle, the ancient Spanish fortress built to fend off pirates from Havana harbor, may soon fall into disuse as a military center for the first time since it was constructed 343 years ago.

For two decades it has been the army's military academy, "Cuba's West Point" but the cadets are to be transferred to a new military school and the future of the venerable landmark is uncertain.

The change is a pet project with President Gerardo Machado who was largely responsible for establishment of the military academy two decades ago. At that time he was head of the Cuban army under the administration of President Jose.

When Morro Castle was built, the cost was almost fabulous for those days and when Cabanas fortress, just behind Morro, was added and the hill reached Charles III of Spain, he called for a pair of field glasses. One of his aides ventured to inquire the cause of his unusual request and legend has it that the monarch replied:

"I want to look at the place. With $14,000,000 invested in it, it ought to be big enough to be visible from Madrid."

"Cuba's West Point" provides accommodations for 100 cadets and the graduating class each year fills the vacancies created by army retirements or detentions. Admission is by competitive examination and about 500 youths annually try to pass the tests of moral, physical and mental fitness.

Unlike the West Pointer, the Cuban cadet is not required to remain in the service after graduation.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU

"SAGITTARIUS"
If December 15th is your birthday, the best hours for you will be from 9 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m. The best fruitful hours will be from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m.

The astrological indications point to a drastic change of interest—either social or commercial—brought about largely by the influence of others. Caution is recommended, as some changes may imply "jumping out of the flying pan into the fire."

Children born on this December 15th will bubble over with enthusiasm over any new task. The enthusiasm, however, will wane, and the task remains incomplete. Their intelligence will be great.

Their affections, on the other hand, will be deep and abiding.

You are rather disposed to chafe at what you call your luck, forgetting that there are as many opportunities today for advancement and progress as there ever were. You rather expect the gifts of the Gods to be handed you on a platter, and overlook the fact that Providence helps those who help themselves. You possess a considerable measure of natural ability. You are not lacking in perseverance and determination. Your vision, however, is untempered—so much so that you fail to see the opportunities that surround you.

Your character is straightforward, and if integrity and a high sense of honor were the only passport to ultimate success, you could and would, achieve miracles. Unfortunately you are afraid to take a chance in any line of endeavor, and this keeps you in a permanent rut.

Your disposition, so far as the outside world goes, is rather undisciplined. In the home, on the other hand, it is both winning and winsome. Acquaintances give you credit for a go-ahead; your intimates give you credit for some of the best character and serious consideration. Your habits are good ones. Your tastes are simple. Anything in the form of ostentation is obnoxious to you. Without social ambition of any description, you derive your greatest happiness from home life or the association of a few sincere friends.

LEGION AUXILIARY HEARS ADDRESS BY NATIONAL CHAPLAIN

Rev. Joseph Barnett, Oshkosh, Talks About Recent Convention

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—The Women's auxiliary of the Norris Spencer post of American Legion joined in entertaining husbands and friends and members of the Junior Auxiliary at a Christmas party Tuesday evening at the club rooms. The guest speaker was National Chaplain Joseph Barnett of Oshkosh. He reviewed the recent convention at Boston at which he was elected to office. He appealed to his listeners not to grow embittered by the present outlook for the adjusted compensation act now pending. He explained the attitude of the Legion in its reaction to the bill, stating that action should come from without the organization.

The Junior Auxiliary sang a Christmas song, led by Little Rosemary McDaniel. Alfred Bruson contributed two clarinet solos, his accompaniment being Miss Joan Scanlon. Little Gordon Eggert played several accordion solos. The evening ended as the group gathered about the lighted Christmas tree for the distribution of small gifts.

Other guests were the commander of the Oshkosh Legion post, who spoke.

CONTRACTOR TELLS OF HOSPITAL CONSTRUCTION

New London—The Lions club meeting Tuesday at Elwood hotel, heard A. W. Hutter, of the Hutter Construction company, Fond du Lac, discuss the building of the new hospital. He showed that 179 different articles went into construction of this building, the greatest item being 35 carloads of gravel and sand. Three trainloads of miscellaneous material, such as marble wainscoting, subflooring, glass and tile were also used. The mechanical parts of the building, he said, such as the boilers, radiators, pipes filled seven freight cars. Mr. Hutter endeavored to show that the cost of these articles in the beginning amounted to little compared to the labor.

Electrical cost was reviewed by Mr. Hutter. Included in this equipment are radio plug-ins for each room, bright lights, suffused lights, and extra lights placed near the floor where their glow will not disturb the patient. Mr. Hutter gave a short resume of the importance of cement plays in the building trade. He concluded his talk by describing how much space actually would be used by patients in the new building. From this he drew a parallel which showed just how much space is needed for the safety and convenience of the patients.

At the conclusion of the meeting members drew names. At the next meeting they will exchange gifts, each to be accompanied by an original poem appropriate to the name drawn.

Archeologists Examine Bones Found In Quarry

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Sherwood—Archeologists of the University of Wisconsin at Madison and of Lawrence college in Appleton visited the Nick Bruhl farm home in this village last Saturday to examine the gigantic bones of a monster animal unearthed about a week ago while workmen were blasting a 15 foot rock ledge at the Clifford Bishop stone quarry.

Professor C. Martin of the state University and Dr. Rufus Bagg of Lawrence college both stated it was their belief that the animal was buried many years ago when a glacier passed over this section of the state. They were unable to identify the bones as being that of any animal ever roaming this part of the country in the past century or two.

Dr. Bagg expects to be present later this week when workmen resume excavation work to find the remaining parts of the huge skeleton of the supposed prehistoric animal.

That the Germans used in the World war an engine of destruction off the Belgian coast about which practically nothing has been revealed, was the assertion of Rear-Admiral R. E. This was an electrically driven crewless launch, controlled from the shore, capable of high speed and quick turning and carrying 500 pounds of gun cotton in its bow. It was designed to ram its prey. It took very craft, which would port, starboard, or run with its helm amidships and took a lot of shaking off. Warships were able to sink it with gunfire once its nature was recognized, but merchant ships were at its mercy.

COUNCIL DEFENDS LOCAL INDUSTRY AGAINST ATTACK

Supervisor Powers' Charges Meet Rebuttal in Council Meeting

Kaukauna—After a rather hectic meeting Tuesday evening, with several members of the county board present, the city council failed to adopt a resolution favoring relocation of highway 41 through Wrightstown.

Supervisor William Powers opposed the change because it would enable men living in Wrightstown to come to this city and work. He stated that when the street cars were operating there were as many as 47 men working in the laundry mill who lived outside our community and paid a small tax, taking the work away from men living in the city.

He said that the Thilmany mill is paying $35,000 a year less taxes than it should, and that it is not just to the working men of the city who have to pay taxes. He stated that he was not attempting to tell the mill officials what they should hire or what they should pay, but that they should give the working men in the city a fair deal. He said that he does not approve establishment of more county trunks as the county already is overloaded with such roads. To maintain them and to keep them cleared of snow is costly.

Takes Opposite Stand

Alderman Walter Cooper replied that the city should not criticize local industries, adding that there are a number of local men working in Combined Locks, Kimberly and Appleton. "We have no right to say whom the mill shall hire," he said. "There are only about 18 men working in the Thilmany mill from out of the city at the present time, and some of these live just beyond the city limits."

Mayor B. W. Fargo said that Thilmany mill is not paying $35,000 less tax than it should. He explained that he considered the valuation placed on the city by the state was done as a result of "direct politics." The valuation of Appleton had to be raised, and because there was a large number of votes in Appleton, the state commission raised all valuations, accordingly, he charged.

John Copes, president of the Kaukauna Advancement association, replied that the Thilmany mill did not make anything out of Kaukauna, because its product was not sold in the city. He said that if the city does not do anything for the industries that it already has, then it will not encourage other industries to locate here. The Thilmany mill here are the backbone of the city, with them gone, property here would lose almost all its value, he pointed out.

Eliminates Hazards

He discussed adoption of the resolution, favoring the relocation of highway 41 by the Advancement association. The new route would eliminate two dangerous railroad crossings he added. He said that he believed Brown-co wanted the relocation and he wanted to cooperate with that county.

Supervisor Sylvester Esler said that he was not in position to talk on the proposal. He explained that a petition for relocating the highway was started by a farmer living near Wrightstown. If the road is going to cost this county any money, he would not favor it, he added.

Supervisor Fred Reichel stated that if Brown-co is willing to meet Outagamie-st., he is in favor of it.

William Rohan, former member of the county board, said he was informed that Brown-co did not favor a state highway, but only a gravel road to connect with the highway at both points where the proposed highway and the old highway would meet. This would be a county trunk highway without any change in present highway 41.

He recalled that he was a member of the county board in 1926 and a member of the committee which was working to have a county line established at the point near McCarty's crossing into Wrightstown. At that time an appropriation was made by the county along with several others for the work.

Drop Appropriations

The appropriation was $5,000. Another appropriation of $4,000 was made to pave Black-st for $4,000. Some trouble was experienced with a property owner through whose land the proposed road would have run. All appropriations were then dropped.

Mr. Rohan then explained that if the county does put a road in now another appropriation would be made, though the city still has the first appropriation coming. He said that the city should find out what became of the first appropriation. Kaukauna pays 10 per cent of the county taxes, so why pay for another appropriation when we already have one for the purpose?

Joseph LeFevre, city attorney, replied that the appropriations made then were illegal. He added that Kaukauna sometimes received appropriations that it was not supposed to receive, but that it did not receive funds to which it was entitled to, this evening up matters.

HEINEMANN LAUDS MOTHERS PENSIONS IN TALK TO WOMEN

County Judge, However, Hasn't Much to Say for School Age Law

Kaukauna—Judge Fred V. Heinemann of Appleton talked at the Kaukauna Woman's club meeting in the club room of the public library Tuesday afternoon, on juvenile delinquency, mothers' pensions, and old age pensions.

Years ago there were only a few cases of juvenile delinquency, but conditions are different now, he said. One reason for so many cases of juvenile delinquency is that the Children's Code makes all youths under 18 years of age a child. If a boy who is just under 18 commits a crime, he is taken to the juvenile court. Formerly he would have been treated as a man and taken into a higher court.

"Sometimes youths get into trouble because of too much leisure," he said. There are those who do not take any interest in school and would rather find jobs. The law compels these youths to attend vocational school at least one day a week until they are 18 years of age. Because of this they cannot get a job, and spend their time out of school in idleness. Vocational training is a great help to those who desire it, but compulsory education does not always seem to be the best for those who do not take an interest in it. Cooperation of parents is a help in bringing up children properly."

He spoke highly of the mother's pension that can be obtained from the county. The county pays out about $55,000 each year in this activity, and each case is carefully checked before the pension is granted, he explained.

County Board Helps

"The Outagamie county board adopted the Old Age pension with only one dissenting vote," Judge Heinemann said. "People of this county can feel proud to be living here where $250,000 is spent each year in giving aid without any of the tax payers complaining. The officials have two ways of considering the expenditure of the tax payers' money. One is that they do their duty to those who need it, and the other is that they look out for the tax payer. Each case must be studied so that the money is distributed with justice."

"Several factors are responsible for the need of old age pensions. One is that people live longer now. Another is that machines are replacing men in industry. New inventions decrease the need for hand labor, with the result that older men are put out of jobs while younger men are employed to operate machines. Installment buying also is responsible to some extent for the need of pensions. Years ago people saved their money until they could buy the things they wanted. Now they buy many things and pay on the installment plan. In this way they cannot save for old age. Still another reason is the changed relationship between the children and parents. When youths leave school, they feel satisfied when they pay a little money at home for board, while years ago all the money went home until after they were 21 years of age."

In pointing out the advantage of the old age pensions, Judge Heinemann said that it costs the tax payers about half as much to support the old people with pensions as to keep up poor houses. The old people can then live in their own town, among their friends and relatives, able to eat and wear what they want and have their own time without restrictions. In a poor house these things are not possible with a large number of unfortunates.

EGG PRICES DROP AS HEAVY SURPLUS CLUTTERS MARKET

Producers and Storage Houses See Profits Disappearing

BY W. F. WINSEY

Over-production of eggs the past year, under-consumption, or both have created a surplus and reduced the producer and consumer prices very materially for this season of the year as well as the profits of egg storage people. A short time ago the price of eggs in the Chicago market suddenly dropped without warning from 33 to 23 cents per dozen. A few days afterwards the drop was reflected to the producer and consumer. The drop hit the producer and egg storage people a hard blow because winter is the egg harvest of the producer and the time that storage eggs are unloaded. The losses to producers and dealers and gains to consumers are equal. Both producers and dealers will continue to lose money on eggs until the consumer prompted by the low price eats too many eggs in the place of one and removes the surplus.

According to the Dec. 1, 1930 issue of the agricultural situation, United States department of agriculture, the Nov. 1 holdings of frozen eggs were 98,000,000 pounds, and of case eggs 5,717,000 cases.

The reduction in holdings of case eggs was 2,387,000 cases which left a surplus above Nov. 1, 1929, of 1,847,000 cases.

The out-movement of frozen eggs was 8,307,000 pounds as compared with 11,210,000 a year ago. The surplus was 27,993,000 or equal to 799,800 cases. Total stocks were equivalent to 2,809,000 cases.

A local source of information sets the holding of eggs on December 1, 1930 at 4,150,000 cases as compared with a five years' average of 3,236,000 cases and holdings, December 1, 1929, of 2,651,000 cases. The latter statement if true shows 13 million more cases of eggs in storage than a year ago, and 924,000 more cases than the five years' average.

Fresh and storage eggs of perfect quality are selling in Green Bay at the same price at least in a number of places and between that price and what the producers of eggs is getting the difference or margin is very small.

SOIL TESTS POINT TO FERTILIZER USE

Farmers May Expect Hillo-sides to Be Short in Lime and Phosphate

BY W. F. WINSEY

Observation of soil testing in several counties by county agents and soil specialists of the college of Agriculture, and their instructions to farmers has convinced the writer that soil testing should be made the basis for the use of barnyard manure, lime, and commercial fertilizers. More than that the test of soil samples should be used as a guide to the crop to be planted in a field.

Soil testing changes guess work in the use of fertilizers and in crop rotation to certainty and prevents serious losses in the purchase of fertilizers not needed in a field and spreading manure where no manure is required.

Soil testing already has shown that farmers have expended considerable money for lime when phosphate was needed in a field, or phosphate when lime was needed, and for phosphate and lime when potash was needed.

In a general way, farmers or soil specialists that test soil on hill-sides and sloping fields are short in lime and phosphate and lowlands are rich in these plant foods on account of the wash from high to low places. They may also reason that lowlands are lacking in potash. They may reason that the supply of lime and phosphate diminishes from the low part of a slope in a field up to the highest elevation.

If their reason in this way and decide to have their conclusions verified by testing the soil they will probably select samples from various spots in a field and indicate the spots on a map of the field by the numbers on the soil samples. If the samples are disturbed or mixed up after testing by the owner, the testing is of every little service as is only one sample tested from an entire field.

The best results obtain in cases where farmers use headwork in the selection of soil samples and in making permanent records of soil testing.

FOREIGN TRADE CONTINUES DROP ON LARGE SCALE

Exports Decrease 35 Per Cent in November, Imports 39 Per Cent

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
The figures of this country's foreign trade in November, which were reported Tuesday, indicate a continuation of the falling off in business between the United States and its overseas customers on a large scale. Exports show a decrease of $153,000,000, or 35 per cent, while the decline in the value of imports was $134,000,000, or 39 per cent. The total loss in trade of $287,000,000, however, was less than that indicated between October and the same month in 1929 when it reached the large figure of $343,000,000.

The decline in prices of commodities, and especially in those of cotton and grain, the export values naturally shrink rapidly even though there is a fairly large quantity export movement in them. The same is true with other commodities, such as copper, the demand for which was larger during part of November than in October but which tapered off toward the end of the month. However, the price of the red metal, even at the advanced figure in November, was only about half as high as it had been in the previous year.

Buying Power Less
Exports of manufactured articles have also slumped badly, with shipments of automobiles in recent months of a nominal value compared with those in the corresponding periods of 1929. Exports of agricultural implements, typewriters and other specialties of American factories have been affected by the reduced purchasing power of foreign countries as their shipments to the United States have affected their trade balances.

For the eleven months to Nov. 30, the value of exports shows a decrease of $1,246,000,000, or 26 per cent, and that of imports a loss of $1,236,000,000, or 30 per cent. The export excess over imports for the period is $715,000,000, compared with $725,000,000 for the corresponding term in 1929.

The decline in the country's foreign trade began in October last year. With the exception of a short interval last summer, it has shown a downward trend. The decrease in the value of raw materials and merchandise every month since. The decreases have been accentuated since the passage of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill last spring. In spite of the efforts of the authors of this bill to prove that it has been a blessing to the United States during the present depression, it is difficult to confirm this judgment in the foreign trade figures of the last three or four months.

Gold Imports Up
Imports of gold in November were in excess of $40,000,000, compared with slightly over $7,000,000 in the same month last year. Exports were $5,000,000, or only one-sixth of the amount a year ago. For the 11 months, the United States has received in gold from 'tenth' America and Japan primarily, with smaller amounts from Europe, a total of over $863,000,000 of the yellow metal and has exported in the same period about $116,000,000. Consequently, there has been a net gain of $247,000,000 in the country's gold holdings which, however, is considerably smaller than that which has been added in the same period to the stock of gold in France. In 1929 between January and the end of November the net receipts of gold here were $229,000,000.

The arguments of those economists who believe that the fundamental trouble with the world today is the maldistribution of gold between the nations of the world find support in an increase of nearly $500,000,000 in the gold holdings of the United States in the past two years at the expense of other countries whose currencies are now suffering from a condition of gold famine.

Capitol Christmas History Is Filled With Anecdotes

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

Washington.—(P)—To the home at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue, probably America's most famous residence, Christmas comes again bearing memories of other Yuletides in the White House.

Some have been puritanically simple, some were described as "gorgeous" and others were war-saddened, but from John Adams to Herbert Hoover all were rich in the home-loving note that always has been a national symbol.

Washington never lived in the White House he helped design, serving his presidential terms in New York and Philadelphia.

When President Adams and his wife celebrated the first White House Christmas, Washington was a "wilderness city" and Pennsylvania avenue was a dirt road.

Construction of the executive mansion was not completed and Mrs. Adams had the family wash hung in the great audience room on the first floor.

President Adams' Christmas garb consisted of a black velvet suit, silk stockings, silver knee and shoe buckles, white waistcoat and powdered hair.

Andrew Jackson, saddened by the death of his wife Rachel, had his grandnephews and grandnieces spend the holidays with him in the White House. They persuaded him to hang up his stockings along with theirs on Christmas eve.

The next morning Old Hickory in a woolen nightgown came down stairs to see what Santa Claus had brought.

There were tears in his eyes as he pulled a cornucopia pipe, a pouch of tobacco and some trinkets from his stockings. Later in the day he gave a party for the children in that "grand old parlor," the east room.

Official "Snowball Fight"
On the table a pyramid of snowballs made of starch-coated cottons was surmounted by a huge gift game-cock. After a feast and a "snowball fight," Jackson and Vice President Van Buren played blind man's buff and puss in the corner with the children.

At one Christmas party in Polk's administration Mrs. Polk wore a maroon-colored velvet dress trimmed with deep lace and a pink head-dress. Polk wore what was described as a "faded suit of solemn black."

Christmas of 1861 found the nation in civil war. The giant Lincoln, a shaw, across his stooped shoulders, patiently selected toys in a New York avenue shop for his sons Willie and Tad, and their playmates.

Tad had a quarrel with the White House cook when he brought in a group of ragged urchins to eat turkey and cranberries.

He appealed the case to his father and won a verdict.

The Christmas of the Roosevelt regime were "glorious" days with

Then came the jovial Taft. At midnight one Christmas eve a crowd of young men with hymn books and trombones invaded the White House yard. Approaching the north portico, they started singing "Adeste Fideles."

A second story window was raised and the President clad, in a bright blue bathrobe and looking like a jolly Santa Claus, called out: "Merry Christmas, boys, and thank you."

BRISTOL DOCKERS POOL DOLES WITH PART TIME WORK

Dock Workers Work in Three Day Shifts During Unemployment Period

Bristol, England.—(P)—Dock workers of this seaport have almost solved their own unemployment problem. Worked out by men grown grey on the wharves, the scheme provides for pooling both of working time and of the "dole" received by the men from the government.

Through sharing in the combined pool each man saves the other from living entirely upon the money given by the government. They take turns, working in three day shifts turn about, so each workman gets some wages.

Thus they take part of the financial drain off the government and instead of 200 men drawing full government dole, 400 men work half time and draw only "casual insurance dole." This, combined with their wages, gives each man a chance.

Government officials are watching the experiment closely, but decline to say whether they plan to work out a similar arrangement throughout the country.

Spring Thaws To Test First Metal Base Road

Springfield, Ill. —(P)— Spring thaws will test the "world's first metal base highway."

If it withstands "soft" weather after the winter freezeup, highway experts will believe they have found a cheaper and quicker way of building brick pavements.

The highway is a 150-foot section of a regular brick pavement outside Springfield—but based on iron plates instead of concrete.

It was opened to traffic in October and will undergo service tests until after the spring thaws to determine its durability.

Outwardly, the experimental section looks the same as the rest of the brick pavement, but it is claimed to have greater flexibility to withstand shocks of heavy traffic and stresses of heat and cold.

The base was made of large sections of sheet iron, two-thirds being corrugated and the remainder flat plates. They were laid directly on the subgrade soil. Over them was spread a cushion of sand and tar before the bricks were set.

Its builders expect the new type of construction to save time and money because the concrete base is eliminated, doing away with the necessity of excavating and of waiting for a cement layer to set.

VIGOROUS RALLY CLIMAXES SELLING ON STOCK MARKET

Sharp Rebound in Afternoon Follows Heavy Slump in Morning

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer
New York—(AP)—The stock market experienced the most clear-cut rally in weeks today, and rallied vigorously. Selling of oil and miscellaneous issues plunged the list further into new low ground during the morning, but soon after midday, a sharp rebound occurred. The list quickly recovered losses of 2 to 6 points, and several shares advanced to gains of similar extent. Trading was in large volume in the morning, but slackened after midday. Some of the commodity markets rallied in sympathy.

Allied Chemical dropped 4 points, and rebounded 7 from the bottom. Atchafalaya Tumbled 3, and rebounded 4 points to the lowest in three years, then recovered. U. S. Steel declined more than a point to the cheapest price since 1928, but rallied to show a gain of 2. Other shares making net gains of 2 points or more included North American, Bethlehem, International Harvester, American Water Works, and American Can. Coca Cola dropped 6, then recovered in part, which resisted the morning selling, surged up more than 8 points.

Most of the mid-week business statistics were viewed as mildly favorable. The steel trade reviews indicated that "Ingot production" held steady in the past week, after several successive weeks of declines. Some further slackening is expected with the approach of the holidays, however.

The midweek petroleum statistics showed a small decline of 62,000 in gasoline stocks, although refiners increased their operations 3 percent. This could not be construed very favorably in view of the comment of "The Wall Street Journal" that "the oil industry is in a state of depression." The report of New Jersey, which said that the refiners must cut their production from 7 to 8 percent, if the troubles of 1930 are to be obviated next year. Crude production showed a slight gain.

George Leigh-Jones, president of the Shell Oil Co. of California, however, was moderately optimistic on selling in Europe. He said there is an increasing tendency "to cooperate and devise remedies to improve the industry." Wholesale gasoline at Chicago continued to ease. The report of freight car loadings for the first week of the month showed a larger than normal gain from the Thanksgiving day week. The total was about 15 percent under 1929 and 20 percent under 1928. Electric Power output for the second week of the month showed a moderate gain over the first week, and while 5.3 percent under 1929, was 1.9 over 1928, a larger gain over last year than in the previous week.

Call money came down to 2 percent, after a rise to 2 1/2 percent reflecting the easing of the money market by the government overdraft at the reserve bank. Money moved up from 2 percent last Friday for the first time in more than two months.

RALLY REPLACES SELLING ON CURB

Turnover on Recovery Is Just as Large as Volume on Decline

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer
New York—(AP)—The heaviest selling movement of the current decline was followed by marked rallying tendencies on the curb today and the turnover on the recovery was just as large as the volume on the decline.

Early selling centered in the utilities and investment trusts, which with few exceptions were pushed into new low ground. Oils had something of a respite, although Cities Service and Humble dropped about a point before any support was encountered.

Industrials moved sluggishly. Aluminum Company of America slumped 5 points, approximating its slump of last week. Driver Harris lost a point, but rallied 3. Fajardo Sugar, on the other hand, relinquished a moderate early advance in fairly active trading. Deere and American Cyanamid "B" firmed.

Losses of around a point in Electric Bond & Share, United Light "A", Niagara Hudson, American and Foreign Power, and American Superpower held steady. Associated Gas "A", however, was weak.

Liquidation of United Founders and Goldman Sachs sent both to new lows before the selling subsided. The call money renewal rate eased back to 2 percent, signaling the passage of the mid-month period.

GREATER DEMAND BETTERS PRICES

Only Minor Operators Enter
Market and They Pay
More for Hogs

Chicago—(AP)—Anticipating a broader demand for hog products, holders struck a bullish attitude early today, demanding 15 @ 25c higher prices. Only minor operators took hold and shippers were inclined to take the light butchers at 10c higher prices, while small packers timidly tried to get droves at 5 @ 10c higher. Eastern buyers offered $8.00 and selected light butchers were held above this figure. Packers received 10,000 on through billing out of the fresh run of 27,000 and 5,000 stale hogs were on hand.

GRAIN PRICES IN BRISK RECOVERY AFTER EARLY DROP

Highest Points of Day Are Reached During Final
Dealings

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor
Chicago—(AP)—Brisk recoveries took place in grain values today responsive to a strong advance scored by securities quotations. The recoveries in cereals were after an early collapse that carried July wheat prices down to records not paralleled here since the experience of the early 1920s. Highest points of the day for grain were reached to prepare for the government crop export due after the close of the market.

Momentary flurry of general selling but almost complete absence of other indications of anything unusual accompanied the breaks in July wheat prices early today to levels heretofore unprecedented for 29 years. Closest comparisons were with July, 1901, when Chicago wheat values plunged as low as 83c. Contributing to downward momentum of Chicago wheat today was the fact that the Winnipeg market outdid all known records, and registered more than 10c bushel under current prices here.

Brief rallies in Chicago wheat quotations met with renewed temporary expansion of selling and the market for July soon showed a break to about 2c below yesterday's finish. The downward swings of prices were in the fact of reports that the Australian wheat crop had of late been damaged 10,000,000 bushels. Corn and oats dropped with wheat and as a result or stop loss selling.

Provisions were responsive to grain weakness, despite upturns in the value of hogs.

WALL STREET BRIEFS
Comparison of the relative position of railroads in 1929 as against 1920, Standard Statistics Co. says, indicates that at the beginning of this year plant, facilities, equipment and financial situations were the best in their history. The current business depression, the bulletin continues, and the emphasis placed upon the maintenance of rate reduction, increasing taxation, highway and pipe line competition by the roads themselves, have resulted in wide public over-estimation of present and potential adversities besetting railroads in general. "Ultimate improvement in fundamental business will unquestionably be followed by upturn in railroad traffic and earnings, based on the progressive improvement in operation displayed over the past decade," the bulletin says.

Most railroad bonds now legal for the investment of New York state savings bank funds will retain their legal status next year, says Moody's. A comparison based on railroad earnings, the first 10 months of 1930 indicates that all but Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville and Mobile and Ohio—of the 35 railroads listed will be able to report the necessary margin for their retention. The two, Moody's says, seem almost sure of removal from the provision that legal "must be bonds of carriers which in the last fiscal year preceding the investment have earned their fixed charges not less than one and one half times."

NEW YORK—(AP)—Pointing out that it is necessary for oil refiners to hold down their production of gasoline to avoid a bad gasoline market next year, the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, in the publication "The Lamp," says its subsidiary and affiliated companies have consistently restricted their gasoline output for two years. The publication points out that whereas the industry shows an increase of 19.19 percent in the last two years, Standard of New Jersey reduced stocks 5.19 percent.

CHICAGO STOCKS IN SELLING WAVE

Many Issues Succumb to Liquidation Despite Previous Strength

Chicago—(AP)—Furious selling swept over the Chicago stock exchange market today, and many issues which had previously resisted pressure succumbed to liquidation. The volume of trading was at the rate of a 500,000 share day. Some few issues, however, advanced against the trend.

Insult Utility was the chief target of attack, and broke precipitately to 27 1/2, or 27 points from the previous final. Middle West ran into extensive buying orders at 15, but touched 14 1/2 for a few sales. Corporation Bond advanced a few low of 14 1/2, and Central Southwest a low of 13 1/2. Edison was firm at 22 1/2. Grigby touched a new low of 11.

U. S. Gypsum advanced to 33, up 11 from yesterday's close. U. S. Road displayed strength, rallying a point to around 11 1/2, but it failed to hold all the gain.

Resistance shown by Middle West at 15 caused a sharp recovery in the Insult group.

LORD GORELL MAY BE INDIA'S NEXT VICEROY, IT SEEMS

Soldier-author, Famed for Mystery Thrillers, Stated
for Job

BY MILTON BRONNER
London.—Lord Gorell, soldier, poet and writer of thrillers—is shortly, according to well-authenticated reports to be given by Britain's Labor government the hardest job in the world—that of Viceroy of India.

And that has set all the Tory papers of the kingdom going. Without mentioning his name, they are either beseeching or adjuring the Labor government not to think of naming a member of the Labor party to the Viceroyalty. They claim to go on the assumption that there is nobody in the party fit for the huge and perilous task and then proceed to name men whom they deem fit. They are mostly of Liberals. The tone of their song is that Premier MacDonald should not make of the viceroyalty a plum for some member of his party.

To which the Daily Herald, organ of the Labor party, sharply retorts that in the past Tory Premiers have named Tory viceroys and Liberal Premiers have named Liberals. It asks when any of them ever named a member of the Labor party to an important key position.

Has Ghandi's Enmity
If Lord Gorell is named and does take the job, he will be assuming perhaps a greater responsibility than any man who ever held the great office. The Round Table Conference is meeting in London trying to find a formula for the future government and kinds of government that India shall have and one that will be more in conformity with the desires of the Indian people. But, in the meantime, the most powerful party, the Congress party, led by Ghandi and the Nehru brothers, who have been jailed by the government, is having nothing to do with the conference.
They want to cut all ties with Britain. And India is seething with unrest which may break out at any time into something very dangerous and menacing. To be Viceroy of India in the next five years is going to be a full man size job unless the Round Table Conference finds a way out.

If he becomes the Viceroy, Lord Gorell will rank as one of the most versatile men who have ever held the great office. His father, the

Faces Hard Job

Lord Gorell, above, has been a lawyer, journalist, distinguished soldier, Under-Secretary for Aviation, poet and author of mystery tales.
But his most difficult job—perhaps the hardest job in the world—lies ahead of him, if he is offered the post of Viceroy of India.

first Baron Gorell, was for years President of the Divorce Court. The present peer was educated at Winchester and Harrow and then went to Balliol College, Oxford, where he not only ranked well in his classes, but was a talented amateur actor, a trick bicyclist and a keen player on the Oxford cricket eleven.

Coming out of the university, he was called to the bar, like his father before him, in 1908. But the law was too slow for the young man. So he turned to newspaperdom for a touch of the real thing, and from 1910 to 1915 was on the staff of the Times.
Then he went to the war, being Captain Adjutant in the famous Rifle Brigade. While lying in the hospital, badly wounded in 1916, he whiled away the weary hours of pain by writing his first detective novel. He has written many others since.

He succeeded to the Barony in 1917 when his elder brother was killed in action in France. Once more back in the fighting himself, Lord
Gorell was made a Major on the General Staff in 1918. He was then called home and made Deputy Director of Staff Duties at the War Office from 1918 to 1920, having special charge of the education of soldiers. At the same time he was made chairman of the Imperial Education Committee. In the years 1921-22 he was Under-Secretary for Air and Vice President of the Air Council in the coalition government. A year or so later he was pretty well fed up with the old political parties so nobody was much surprised when he formally joined the Labor party in 1925.

Despite his busy and active life,
Lord Gorell has not only found time to write detective novels, but others as well, notably "Plush" and "Devil's Drum." He has also written many volumes of poetry. Some years ago he was invited by the Poetry Society of London to read some of his own verses. One of these he claimed was the first sonnet ever written about an airplane, the verses giving a vivid description of the experiences of a man who had made his first flight in one. He then went on to assert that poetry should draw level with life and deal with things that were interesting to the public. To give point to his words, he read a poem on "Black Friday of the Coal Strike" and another "Requiem of War." He was chosen chairman of the Society of Authors

Izu Peninsula Is One Of World's Shakiest Spots

Washington, D. C.—"The Izu Peninsula, center of the Japanese earthquake, is one of the world's shak-iest spots; for two weeks before the recent disaster, the inhabitants of the peninsula were shaken by an average of 300 tremors a day," says a bulletin from the Washington, D.
C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The peninsula is one of the east coast appendages of Honshu, principal island of the Japanese archipelago. It lies on one of the forks of the western Pacific volcanic ridge which passes down the Asiatic coast and through the East Indies.

Spas Dot Peninsula
"Izu has not been in the spotlight in recent years as the center of major earthquake disturbances. However, Yokohama and Tokyo, which were practically leveled by a 'quake' in 1923, are but 40 and 60 miles, respectively, northeast of the head of the peninsula.

"Throughout the northern part of the peninsula are hot springs which enterprising Japanese have developed into thriving resorts. Ata-mi, where it is reported 120 houses were destroyed, nestles in an extinct crater at the northeast corner of the peninsula. A portion of the crater is submerged in the Bay of Sagami. Among Atami's 6,000 residents are members of the Japanese nobility.

Residence of Diplomat
"It, where many houses are reported destroyed by fire resulting from the earthquake, is also a popular spa. The hot springs spurt salty water and the chief problem of the city fathers of the resorts is to procure ordinary drinking water.
Mishima, near where a score of people lost their lives, is the largest city on the peninsula, with 11,000 inhabitants.

"Shimoda, on the eastern coast of the peninsula, came into the American spotlight in the middle of the last century when a treaty was ratified there which first opened Japan to foreign trade. In 1853 Captain Matthew Calbraith Perry, U. S. N., sailed up the Bay of Sagami to Shimoda, went ashore with 300 men and and Japan, providing, among other things, for the opening of Shimoda to American trading vessels, was proclaimed.

"America's first diplomatic representative to Japan resided at Shimoda. It was a tidal wave and earthquake that caused the diplomatic offices to be removed from Shimoda to Yokohama in 1859."
